CHOLERA SWEEPS RUSSIA AND ITALY; THOUSANDS DEAD

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 19.—As the cholera epidemic is sweeping Russia, killing half of the stricken, the situation has been increased in seriousness by conflicts between troops and country people defying the health regulations, according to dispatches received today from the southern districts. Attempts to establish a quarantine have led to fights at many places in which it is estimated fully 100 health officers have been hurt. Several trying to escape quarantine have been shot.

DEATH HARVEST SHOWS TOTAL OF 50,287.

Official figures published to-day show 23,944 new cases found in a week with 10,723 deaths in that time.

The total number of cases so far is 112,985, with 50,287 deaths. The situation is better in St. Petersburg, the week showing 265 cases against 577 the previous week. The total deaths in St. Petersburg in all number 730.

Orders were issued to-day prohibiting all public meetings or processions in the affected provinces.

By special train more doctors and nurses were sent to-day to Pugile and other points. Rules of hygiene have been published for distribution broadcast. It is ordered that all water be boiled and that no uncooked fruits or vegetables be eaten. Fleshing has been prohibited.

Dr. Ruetti, with full powers for a hard campaign against the epidemic, arrived at Trani to-day.

CHOLERA NOW SPREADING ALL THROUGH ITALY

BARI, Italy, Aug. 19.—The gravity of the situation in the provinces of Bari delle Puglie, where Asiatic cholera has broken out, is thoroughly appreciated by the Italian Government. The town of Trani is badly infected and, of forty-four deaths reported in the latest advices, twenty have occurred in that place.

There have been ten deaths at Barletta, one at Cerignola, two at San Ferdinando, one at Biscegile, four at Margherita di Savoia, three at Andria and three at Trinitapoli.

Dr. Ruetti, who has been sent from Rome to direct the work of sanitation, has been appointed a royal commissioner with full powers. Decrees have been issued forbidding fairs, processions, festivals and public meetings.

The authorities express confidence that the physicians now in charge of the various infected districts will be able to stay the progress of the disease, but so far the death rate has been very high, those attacked in many cases dying within a few hours.

The present epidemic therefore is of a virulent type, and as it has gained a strong foothold in several districts it will be difficult to check. In various quarters infanticide has been spread and several of them already are filled with panic, suspected of having the disease.

The Red Cross is giving valuable assistance to the authorities by the free use of disinfectants many of the houses have been cleansed and the belongings of those who have been in contact with the disease have been burned.

The King has already intimated his intention of visiting the city, his father, in 1885, fearless of danger, proceeded to Naples and remained among the cholera patients, who are dying at the rate of a thousand daily.

King Victor Emmanuel is reported to have said: "If the scourge increases, instead of going to Montenero to take part in the festivities, I shall go where my people are dying."

WEST AND EAST NEAR CLIMAX IN TENNIS BATTLE

NEWPORT CASINO, Aug. 19.—With poor weather conditions threatening to mar the thirtieth all-comers' national tennis championship tournament, the struggle between the West and the East to-day rapidly neared its climax.

To-day's program included a match between Beals C. Wright, ex-champion and Internationalist, and Malcolm G. Chase. The experts conceded Wright the match, thus pitting the Boston crack against Maurice E. McLoughlin in the semi-finals to decide who shall meet the champion Learned in the finals.

Since the opening of the tournament Wright has been playing in his old-time form, carrying everything before him. He will be compelled to play his best game if he is to defeat young McLoughlin, the California wonder. Throughout the tournament McLoughlin has been putting up a marvelous game.

It was arranged this morning to put McLoughlin against D. E. Jones, the veteran Rhode Island winner. An alternative card included Clifford R. Gardner of the coast delegation against Fred C. Colston of Maryland. The Californians were to day conceded at least one man to reach the lower half. Thomas C. Bundy's opponents were all declared to be his inferiors.

The gallery to-day was divided between Wright and McLoughlin. One of the chief reasons why McLoughlin is favored by the many spectators is his extreme youth, being nothing more than a boy in age and actions.

SENATOR TURTLE OUT OF POLITICS

Senator William Turtle of Pittsfield, one of the best known Democrats in Massachusetts, who has been mentioned as a successor to himself in the Senate, and also as a possible candidate for the Republican Attorney-General nomination, is to retire from politics.

LONG A CANDIDATE.

Edward Long of Randolph, president of the A. O. H. in Suffolk County, will be a candidate for the office of State Treasurer before the State convention to be held in Lowell next week.

RICH MAN SAVES DROWNING BATHER

LYNN, Aug. 19.—Edward M. Rickard, a member of the prominent shoe manufacturing firm of Rickard & Greene of this city, proved himself a hero when he pulled an exhausted man from the surf at Nahant Beach. Mr. Rickard and some friends were bathing, and several shoe workers started for the water, cries were soon heard from them that Mr. Rickard, who weighs 200 pounds, plunged in without hesitation and singlehanded brought the exhausted man back to shore.

HOTEL ENGINEER IS HELD FOR ATTACK

William A. Lacey, night engineer at the Hotel Somerset, was to-day held in $5,000 for a hearing in the Roxbury Court on September 16 on the charge of assaulting Joseph Levy, night watchman in the hotel, with intent to kill. Levy is suffering from a fracture of the skull in the City Hospital and may die. The police charge that Lacey struck Levy with a blunt instrument, while Levy denies hitting him at all.

CENSUS FIGURES FOR IOWA AND ILLINOIS

Washington, Aug. 19.—The Census Bureau to-day made public the following population returns: Illinois—Danville, 26,871; last census, 16,354; increase, 50.6. counties: Madison, 89,847; last census, 61,004. Vermilion, 77,096; last census, 67,695. Iowa—Sioux City, 47,828; last census, 33,111; increase, 44.4. Arkansas—Lafayette county, 13,741; last census, 10,504.

NEW WOOL ARRESTS ARE MADE

Police inspectors to-day arrested two more men charged with taking part in the plot to rob the Boston & Maine railroad of $10,000 worth of wool. This now makes four men arrested for their connection with the plot. The fifth arrest is expected to-night.

The men arrested were John J. Ross and Edward Parkins, teamsters. Both live in South Boston. They were arraigned before Chief Justice Bolster in the Municipal Court and held for the Grand Jury. All the men now under arrest are charged with stealing $2,500 worth of wool. The police also to-day thoroughly questioned William Porter and John O'Neil, two teamsters, arrested last night.

The police have the names of several tailors and wholesale clothing dealers in this city and New York, who have bought the stolen property at prices far below its original cost, and five of these may be arrested to-day, on a charge of receiving stolen property.

A large New York firm, which is connected with the syndicate, is due to receive a consignment of the stolen goods to-day. Inspectors will be at the freight sheds, and as soon as the goods are claimed the hands of the firm will be placed under arrest, if the present plans of the police are carried out. Arrests will be made in this city simultaneously with those in New York.

The police first "tumbled" to what was going on about three months ago when they discovered a man disposing of three rolls of woolens which they knew had been stolen from the railroad. They watched the man for weeks and finally learned of other members of the gang.

According to the police the men received the goods in cases from the freight houses, to be taken across the city and subsequently. Before the wool was dropped off at convenient points and the original consignee's name erased. Another wagon then took the stolen goods to various tailoring establishments where the goods were sold at prices below their original cost.

Forged way bills were then turned in for the stolen cases. This has been going on for more than a year, it is said. Four stolen rolls have been recovered in a tailor shop at No. 244 Meridian street, East Boston.

One of the men told the police they were in league with a shipper in one of the biggest Massachusetts towns and orders have been sent to the police of the city in which the mill is located to place him under arrest.

PHOTO-ENGRAVERS ARE AGAIN WINNERS

The demands of the striking photo-engravers of Photo-Engravers' Union, No. 3, were to-day granted in full by the Dunbar Engraving Company, which is the seventh firm to pay a minimum wage of $21 per week for six right-hour working days and to abolish the "black list" since the beginning of the strike on July 25. Negotiations are underway with three of the eight concerns who have not yet settled the strike, and the union committee expects that by to-morrow these firms will also grant the demands.

GEN. WOOD COMING TO TALK WITH TAFT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Major General Wood, U. S. A., chief of staff, is to leave here to-morrow for West Point, to inspect the military academy. From there he is to visit Beverly to confer with President Taft on army estimates of appropriation for the military establishment during the next fiscal year. He is to return to Washington next Thursday.

29 ROADS CHARGED WITH DISCRIMINATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—M. Sincleir & Co., independent packers of Cedar Rapids, Ia., in a complaint filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day, charges twenty-nine railroads with discrimination against it in the matter of rates and regulations in favor of the so-called Beef Trust of Chicago.

CLOSE MILL NINE DAYS.

DALY DECLARES HE WILL ACCEPT THE FIRE BERTH

Charles D. Daly, the former Harvard football star and West Point graduate, whose appointment as Fire Commissioner was sent to the Civil Service Commission for approval yesterday by Mayor Fitzgerald, to-day set aside all rumors that he would decline the nomination by declaring that he had accepted it.

"I am a Fire Commissioner," said Mr. Daly to-day. "Beyond this plain statement I cannot say anything. I appreciate fully the very kind words that my friends have said, but at the present time I can only say that I have accepted."

The appointment is now before the Civil Service Commission for consideration. Under the law the commission has thirty days in which to consider before approving or disapproving the appointment.

It was rumored early to-day that Daly would decline the appointment. He was strongly urged to do so by his friends and business associates. It was pointed out to him that he was foolish to bury himself as a municipal department head when he had such bright prospects for a business career with one of the strongest firms in its line in New England.

"Ten years from now you will be a figure in finance," they said; "as a Fire Commissioner you will be a football of politicians."

The position of Fire Commissioner carries with it a salary of $5,000 a year. The law says that the Civil Service Commission shall, in considering appointees, take into consideration their education and fitness for the office to which they are appointed. Daly is educated. He is a graduate of both Harvard and West Point. The Civil Service Commission has interpreted the educational clause to mean education in the particular subject that the appointee is to deal with in office.

SPANIARDS MAKE BID FOR RACE

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 19.—The Spanish boats made a gallant struggle to-day in the third race between the trio of American sonders and the three little boats from across the water, but it looked as though one or more of the Americans would cross the finish line first. The Chonta was the fleetest of the Spaniards and was right on the heels of the swiftest American as they rounded the triangular course the second time.

HARPOON QUICKLY SHOWS HER SPEED.

The yachts rounded the first mark in this order, with the following unofficial time:

| | |
|---|---|
| Beaver | 11:33:00 |
| Clina | 11:33:30 |
| Harpoon | 11:34:37 |
| Chonta | 11:34:37 |
| Papoose | 11:35:07 |
| Mosquito | 11:35:30 |

In the run to the second mark the Harpoon showed her speed and forged ahead of the Beaver and Clina. The breeze filled the sails of the trim boats and they cut prettily through the swelling water. The crowds on the rocks ashore and on the various boats off shore had a fine view of the competitors on this swift leg of the race. Unofficially the boats rounded the second mark as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Harpoon | 12:02:10 |
| Clina | 12:03:05 |
| Beaver | 12:03:47 |
| Papoose | 12:04:10 |
| Chonta | 12:04:25 |
| Mosquito II. | 12:04:55 |

After turning the second mark the Beaver, Chonta and Papoose went to port, while the Clina, Harpoon and Mosquito went to starboard. The trio of leaders struck a calm and their white wings flapped uselessly. They came about to port, and as they approached the third mark, which was the starting point of the triangle, the Beaver was ahead two lengths of the Harpoon, with the Chonta a close third.

There was a great deal of jockeying for the start, but they finally got under way at 11:50, with the Spanish Mosquito II. crossing the line in the lead. Then came the Chonta, the Harpoon, the Papoose, the Clina and the Beaver in the order named.

The Mosquito II. was called back by the judges and was compelled to cross the line a second time, thus losing about half a minute. Five minutes after the start the swift Harpoon, which has not been beaten, yet, leaped forward into the lead with the Chonta at her heels. This fleet pair, representing the two contesting nations, gradually pulled away from their competitors. The Beaver was third.

Fine Luffing Match.

The Papoose and the Clina had a fine luffing match on the way to the first mark. The Mosquito was in the rear as the boats neared the first mark, but was sailing at good speed and creeping up on the others. The course to-day was triangular, two miles to the leg, twice over the course, twelve miles in all.

As the forenoon passed the sea became smoother and the stiff breeze that had been making whitecaps on the waves softened. It was then declared to be an ideal day for boats that were built for a good wind and the six competing crews got aboard their trim little craft and got ready for the third clash of the series.

While the Americans have practically run away with the races so far, the good showing made yesterday by the Chonta has heartened up the visitors immensely.

The Chonta was second, pressing the Harpoon closely toward the close of the first round, when an incident happened that has called for much discussion. Through the concerted work of the Clina and Beaver the Chonta was blanketed and left helpless on the water, while the two American boats shot ahead of her.

Tactics Part of the Game.

These tactics are declared to be part of the game, and either side may utilize them when possible. The Spaniards had come to the conclusion that they would come over the finish mark second, if they did not beat out the Harpoon, when the generalship of the skippers of the Clina and Beaver dashed their hopes to the ground.

GIRL PRISONER IS SUICIDE FOR LOVE

HOBOKEN, Aug. 19.—Arrested on the complaint of her former sweetheart Franz Klisner who charged her with annoying him, Minnie Kritchner, a pretty girl of twenty-two, shot and killed herself in the detention room of the police headquarters to-day. The matron of the prison had just entered the room to search the girl when the accused drew the revolver from the bosom of her dress, placed it behind her right ear and fired. The bullet lodging in her brain. "Tell him I love him," she exclaimed as she fired.

LAYS DOWN $1,400 AND IT DISAPPEARS

SAYBROOK, Ct., Aug. 19.—When Station Master William C. Clark received the package containing $1,400, the weekly payroll for the Connecticut Commission Company, from an Adams express car to-day, he laid it down and then turned his back. When he looked for the package again it was gone. The company is holding a probe here between Connecticut, New Haven and New London. Detectives have been put on the case, but they have no clew.

TAFT VISITS HOME OF HIS ANCESTORS

HOPEDALE, Aug. 19.—President Taft, who came here as a guest of Governor Draper, to-day visited the Draper plant and some of the model tenement houses in the town, leaving later for Uxbridge, Whitinsville and Mendon, the last being the ancestral home of the President's family. He then visited the localities with which the name of Taft had been connected for many years. Many connections of the President's family live in that section of the Blackstone valley.

The President will be back in Beverly by evening. He arose early after spending the night at "The Ledges," Governor Draper's home.

Secretary Norton and Captain Butt accompanied the President here.

On the trip from Beverly, between Revere and Boston, a young woman driving an automobile kept ahead of the President's car for some distance, and apparently would not allow him to pass. The secret service car finally dashed ahead of her and blocked the way until the President's enthused an open course.

The route was through Salem, along the Parkway into Cambridge, Harvard University, into Watertown, and through Wellesley, Natick and Framingham. Near the latter town the road was under repair. Where a detour way was being built, all the passengers in the President's car had to alight while the vehicle passed over planks over the excavation. A party of ladies, who had recognized the President, in along the road to greet him, but were too late.

NEPHEW HUNTED FOR RICH AUNT'S DEATH

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A posse headed by the District Attorney and the sheriff of Dutchess County scoured the country to-day in search of Frank Tompkins, whose wealthy aunt, Mrs. Susan Spencer, was found slain early to-day in the farmhouse near Millbrook, where she acted as housekeeper for Tompkins. Tompkins, who is forty-two years old and was employed by the County Highway Commissioner, was selected as what the crime was discovered. A pack of bloodhounds has been sent for.

CORSER CASE CONTINUED.

Mrs. Eva K. Corser of No. 487 Tremont street was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes to-day, charged with sending improper matter through the mail to her mother-in-law at Portland, Me. She pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Corser told the commissioner that she was a victim of persecution exercised by her mother-in-law. She stated that the latter was trying to keep her husband away from her. The case was continued until Monday.

STRIKERS AT NEW BEDFORD DEFY POLICE

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 19.—Seventy policemen, practically every member of the New Bedford force, were stationed to-day in various sections of this city awaiting a threatened outbreak from strikers who have become greatly angered because they were fired upon yesterday.

The seventy armed men fired yesterday over the heads of the strikers. To-day they are ordered to fire to hit.

It is feared that many of the strikers have armed themselves to resist the police. Chief Inspector D'Alessandro warned Chief of Police Mason to-day that he may expect this. The city fears a bloody clash at any time.

Many of the strikers are known as Brazas. They are from the Cape Verde Islands, big, dark and brawny. They are ferocious when angered.

Mark D. Sullivan, the contractor in charge of the municipal building, fears for his life. It was rumored yesterday as he stood at the side of his automobile a City Hall. A crowd passing hissed in his face:

"We'll get you yet. Don't you forget; we'll get you."

Sullivan told Chief Mason of the threat. The contractor is being guarded.

Police on the Alert.

The falling rain early to-day had the effect of an armistice between the warring factions. It kept the strike-breakers from work and the strikers in their headquarters. But the police were on the alert for a resumption of work at any time and a return of hostilities.

The statement of Organizer d'Alessandro to-day was:

"I told Chief Mason that if the police use unnecessary measures of violence in repressing the strikers I cannot be responsible for the consequences. I told the Chief of police that if they met with police guns again, like they did yesterday morning at Soarp Mills, my men might begin to carry guns. They then got mad at me, I take, indeed, I told him. We have told our men not to shoot and not to carry knives, and they will not make any trouble. But we do not want the police to run forces on us or begin to make trouble. They have no right to stop our men from talking along the streets, provided the strikers do not go on the building jobs.

"There was absolutely no need of the police drawing their revolvers yesterday. If the police keep on pointing our men the way they are doing, and if they attempt any more shooting, I can't answer for what the strikers will do. They will not stand for such high-handed actions by the police."

Police Will Fire to Kill.

Chief Mason's order to his men were:

"There will be no shots fired by members of the police force with a view to intimidate the strikers.

"If there is a revolver discharged the bullet will be fired at a man who is breaking the law.

"I have so instructed my men.

"There will be no repetition of to-day's firing in the air.

"That was done absolutely without my direction, and would not have occurred had I been consulted."

In view of the two statements from the chief and the general organizer citizens are expecting a bloody clash between the police and strikers at any time. Mark E. Sullivan of the firm of John B. Sullivan & Son made the assertion that in the night there would surely be blood shed to-day.

A conference took place to-day between Chief Mason, Mayor Ashley and members of the Master Builders' Association, following the meeting of the latter body. The builders claimed that the police protection afforded them was utterly inadequate. They stated that workmen were remaining away from work because they are too frightened to appear with the strike-breakers. The conference was for the purpose of putting it up to the Mayor and chief of police to call out more police officers to protect the buildings jobs.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight London Time

Mrs. Bacon Robbed by American Thief Gang.

BERNE—Mrs. Daniel Bacon of New York, who was robbed of $45,000 worth of jewels at St. Moritz, yesterday, was the victim of a gang of American thieves who make a specialty of robbing their own countrymen, according to statements made to-day by the authorities. It is now believed that members of this band followed Mrs. Bacon from the time she left New York until the robbery at St. Moritz, where she joined her sister, Lady Parker and Sir Gilbert Parker. Mrs. Bacon was known to have a fortune in jewels with her when she left America. The police are working on the theory that the thieves operated on this knowledge.

Earl of Clancarty Bankrupt.

LONDON.—Though credited with owning 25,000 acres of land, the Earl of Clancarty was to-day reported by a referee in bankruptcy as being $30,000 in debt and no assets in sight. The earl has been in financial difficulties several times since 1895, and sold his mother his estates in 1906. Born in 1868, the earl succeeded his father, the fourth earl, in 1891. He is known as a daring sportsman. He has married twice and has several children.

Miss Haworth Again Arrested.

PARIS—Miss Elizabeth Haworth, the American vaudeville actress, who was recently released after she had been in prison for three weeks or more, and whose ill-treatment at the hands of the authorities caused much public sympathy here, has been arrested again. The new charge is brought against her by a boarding house keeper, Mme. Boucher, who alleges that Miss Haworth obtained $300 worth of goods on false pretenses.

A Stratford-on-Avon Complaint.

LONDON—The vicar and church wardens of Stratford-on-Avon complain that "a certain class of Americans," who ostensibly attend the services in the parish church, merely visit Shakespeare's tomb in the chancel. Consequently, access to the tomb will be forbidden them on Sundays. Further complaint is made that some Americans bring picture postals into the church and "actually address them during the services."

Mrs. Corey to Play for Charity.

PARIS—Mrs. W. E. Corey, known on the stage as Maybelle Gilman, says that the report that she intended to return to the theatrical profession is incorrect. "Perhaps to that effect," says Mrs. Corey, "must have arisen from my studies in grand opera, which now engage my leisure time. I volunteered to play for charity in London some time ago, and may yet do so."

Russians Are Tired of Hawaii.

HONOLULU—Tired of the conditions on the sugar plantations here, eighty Russian laborers have sailed for San Francisco. They are part of a large number of Russians of the peasant class who were imported to work at Hanlehi, Manchuria, and brought to the Hawaiian Islands to work on the sugar plantations.

Baroness Vaughan a Bride.

PARIS—The marriage of the Baroness Vaughan, widow of King Leopold of Belgium, to Emmanuel Durieux took place yesterday. The Baroness wore a black dress, a purple hat and a thick veil. M. Durieux received $100 to the poor.

The Grenadier Band Is Coming.

LONDON—The members of the band of the Grenadier Guards sailed on the steamship Royal George for Montreal. They will make a tour of Canada. It is expected that hereafter a military band will visit Canada every year.

New Palace for King of Siam.

BANGKOK—The King, Queen and the court have left for Petchaburi to attend the laying of the cornerstone of the new palace. They will remain away from the capital thirty days.

SEEK $10,000 WEZOSAL BAIL

Bail for Julius Wezosal, held in $10,000 upon the charge of larceny of $50,000 from the treasury of Russia, following an attack upon a sub-treasury car in Tiflis, December 7, 1907, will be furnished if plans of Russian advocates of Freedom in Boston succeed.

To-day, following the formation of a "Political Refugees Defence League" an effort was begun to obtain bail for the young music teacher whom Russia declares to be one of the most virulent of Anarchists, but whom Boston friends say is but an educated, progressive young Russian, interested in the amelioration of his fellow countrymen.

To-morrow evening the executive committee of the newly formed league will meet and ask Mayor Fitzgerald for the free use of Faneuil Hall for a mass meeting in aid of the accused.

Wezosal is to have a hearing before Commissioner Hayes next Wednesday. It is planned to have the Faneuil Hall meeting either Monday or Tuesday evening.

LEGION OF HONOR RECEIVER REPORTS

The 22th report of Henry A. Wyman, receiver of the American Legion of Honor, was presented to Judge Rugg of the Supreme Judicial Court to-day, and certificate holders entitled to share in the balance in the hands of the receiver were given until May 31 to prove their claims. Since Mr. Wyman was appointed he has paid out over $2,500,000, and only two claims remain unsettled. There are about thirty-five hundred members in good standing who are entitled to share in the remaining funds. These consist of the building at No. 290 Huntington avenue, valued at $300,000, $45,000 in bonds, $10,000 under attachment in a national bank and $3,000 on deposit.

NO BEER ON TAP AT NEW 'REDS'" PARK

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 19.—Cincinnati is going to have a new ball park. President Herrmann of the Reds, it was learned to-day, has completed arrangements for new stands which will seat 22,000 spectators, 10,000 more than the present park holds.

The president has received plans and specifications for steel and cement stands to replace the present structures, to be ready for next season. An innovation then will be a ban on alcoholic. No beer or other intoxicating beverages will be sold. Herrmann thinks that beer-inspired abuse from spectators has driven some of the best players from Cincinnati.

TOBACCO-CHEWING HORSE DEAD AT 23

LYNN, Aug. 19.—Tom, a horse, died to-day at the age of twenty-three. Tom was one of the best known figures in Lynn, for he chewed tobacco, did various tricks and was a great favorite with the children. He earned his living by dragging an ice wagon for the Lynn Ice Company, and James Hinton, who drove him for eighteen years, feels badly over his death.

HARMON SEEKS TO END STRIKE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—Governor Harmon is hopeful of an early settlement of the street car strike, it was learned to-day. It is said that he still hopes to win over the company to submit its case to an arbitration board. He has not turned his efforts toward interesting prominent men and bankers in his plan and through them is trying to reach the company.

Dynamite was again used by strike sympathizers to blow up a Linden car last night. Although the car was lifted from its tracks, neither the motorman nor the conductor was injured. Several shots were exchanged between the crew and members of the mob concealed in the darkness.

GAYNOR NOW IS CONSIDERED OUT OF DANGER

HOBOKEN, N. J., Aug. 19.—Mayor Gaynor's condition was so greatly improved to-day that his physicians announced that he would be allowed to sit up this afternoon or to-morrow.

"I certainly am glad of that," said the patient when he was informed by his nurse of their decision. The Mayor awoke at 6:30 a. m., after eight hours' sleep, and had a breakfast of beef tea, egg and coffee. At 8 o'clock the following bulletin was issued:

The Mayor has slept well and is in excellent condition this morning. Pulse, respiration and temperature are normal. All symptoms are quite favorable. W. J. ARLITZ, M. D.
CHAS. W. DOWD, M. D.

The slight paralysis of the right side of the Mayor's neck will last for some time, the physicians believe, but they hope that by massage treatment after the wound heals will remove this.

Dr. George J. Sullivan, bacteriologist at St. Mary's hospital, announced this afternoon that after to-day Mr. Gaynor would be subjected to any more blood tests. "In no test taken so far has there been the slightest trace of infection," he said, "and our most recent tests show the Mayor's blood to be in excellent condition."

This was probably the happiest day that the Mayor has spent in the hospital. Ruth Gaynor, the Mayor's seven-year-old daughter and his favorite child, for whom he has been asking ever since he entered the institution, was permitted to talk to him fifteen minutes.

"Tootsey," which is the Mayor's pet name for little girl, was so glad to see her father that she could hardly contain herself and her self seemed to brace the sick man up wonderfully.

ADRIATIC DAY LATE OWING TO STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The liner Adriatic arrived at her pier to-day, twenty-four hours late, the delay being caused by a complement of unexperienced firemen, who were taken on at Queenstown because of a strike among the regular stokers. The complement of firemen is one of the most inexperienced that has ever visited America. Stations from all parts of the world are represented among the two hundred odd men who were gathered hurriedly for the trip across.

We always believed that ours were the highest type of ready-for-service clothes and the best possible values securable in all of the cities where we operate.

We hadn't the temerity to claim nationwide supremacy for Hilton clothes, although we believed this to be a fact.

Little did we dream, however, that Hilton clothes were the best in the world; but Congress gives us this distinction.

Read the following excerpt from TARIFF HEARINGS, sixtieth Congress, page 5236:

"One week's protected labor in the United States will pay for a substantial suit of all-wool such as is worn by 75 per cent. of the American people and by the middle classes only in Europe. . . . Such a suit . . . would cost in England two weeks' labor, and in Germany three weeks' labor, while in the United States it can be bought for less than one week's labor."

The suit referred to was one of our regular $12.50 models.

More than twenty persons narrowly escaped injury when an outward bound Jamaica Plain trolley car jumped the rails on Center street near Heath street at 7:35 to-day, crashing into an inward-bound box car of the same line.

TINY BABY HAD DREADFUL ECZEMA

On Hands, Face, Nose and Mouth. Hard Crust Formed and Cracked Open, Blood Ran. Itched Frightfully. Mitts on Hands. No Rest.

Got Cuticura. In 3 Days Relief. In a Week Cured Without a Mark.

"I have a little baby almost a year old. When it was two months old it got eczema on top of both her hands, on her face and loses her nose and mouth. It was so refused to drink and one of her eyes was closed up. A hard crust formed and would crack open and the blood run. It itched so frightfully that the poor little girl could not sleep. We had to put mitts on her hands to keep her from scratching at her face and her mother was forced to sit in a rocking chair with the baby in her arms and she had a very good doctor but he said it might be possibly could to relieve the baby's torture till the zoodles were not what we had looked for.

"We had read of the Cuticura remedies so we went to the drug store and got the Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment. We used them, but at directed and in three days the crust began to come off. In a week there was no more crust and now the baby is entirely without a mark, above zoodle to her cradle and her parents in their flesh, with no more sleepless nights because of the baby's suffering. Cuticura seems a wonderful remedy for skin diseases and any one having eczema should not delay in getting it." (Signed) Mrs. Hugh Ford, R.F.D. 1, Bath, Pa., Dec. 9, 1909."

MRS. J. J. HILL IN CONTEST FOR GRANDDAUGHTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mrs. James J. Hill, wife of the president of the Great Northern railroad, has begun a fight for the custody of her granddaughter, and it is understood that a referee is to-day taking testimony in a suit which has been started. It is said that Samuel Hill, son-in-law of the millionaire railroad man, is the defendant.

Considerable mystery surrounds Mrs. Hill's suit. Lawyers connected with the case will not even disclose the name of the referee. The court's order of reference could not be found in the county court house.

Anton McCook Beard and Justice Hendrick A. Shibberelieux represent Mrs. James J. Hill. Samuel Hill is represented by ex-Supreme Court Justice William N. Cohen. When Mr. Cohen was asked about the suit he declined to discuss it on the ground that it could not interest the public.

Mr. Beard would not at first admit that the referee had been appointed, but when told that this was known to be a fact, he said that when report was had to the courts, the girl was not over age, but that she had gained her majority while the referee was taking his testimony and therefore could not do so else proceed.

Samuel Hill was married to Miss Mary Hill, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hill, in 1898. It is said that Samuel Hill, who is a native of North Carolina, and of no relation to his father-in-law's family, is a Protestant, while Mrs. James J. Hill, who is a Catholic, was anxious to have her granddaughter educated in the Catholic faith.

GIVES A PRIZE FOR BEST PLAYGROUND

The Boys' Games Committee of Boston 1915 has decided to award a bronze shield to the playground winning the most points in the final meet to be held at Wood Island, August 27. The "children" will have as much opportunity to win fame for their playground as the seniors; for a junior point winner will score just as much as his older competitor. Last year Marcella street won first place, but for next week it is hoped to pick a winner because the junior entries may upset all calculations. The points will be assigned on a basis of five for first place, three for second place, two for third place and one for fourth place. The Music Department will furnish a brass band for the Wood Island meet. The interest in this final event is even surpassing that of last year, when there were over 2000 individual entries.

BIG STRIKE CAUSES GARMENT SHORTAGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Independently of the ultimate result of the cloak and shirtmakers' strike and the question whether the union is or is not recognized, the present condition of affairs, according to some of the manufacturers, is drawing toward a crisis which will affect the pockets of hundreds of those who wear cloaks and suits, and may permanently alter the commercial position of the city. The public, the manufacturers say, has to face the fact that there will not be for sale this Fall one-tenth of the usual number of cloaks and suits of the finer qualities, and that the imported article will cost twice as much as usual.

TRAWLER RESCUES HORSE OFF T WHARF

A horse made an exciting time of it at T Wharf, the high engine of a double harness drop which ran from the roof hanging there until the harness was loosened, permitting him to fall into the water. His driver, George Gillespie, secured a long rope, and, making a noose at the end, got the rope around the horse's neck from the deck of one of the vessels.

After considerable struggle the horse was hauled aboard the trawler Spray, put on the wharf again, more frightened than hurt. The team belonged to S. R. Willey & Son Company.

"HOW I CURED MY BOY'S COLD"

Grateful Father Sends Message to All Families.

Writing from Philadelphia county, S. C. Ogden says in part: "I take great pleasure in recommending Father John's Medicine, as I know it is well worth all the praise that can be given to it. My boy had a very bad cold, and after using it a short time quickly cured him. It is a medicine that no family should be without." (Signed) Samuel C. Ogden, 907 Dickinson street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Parents should remember that Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine to give their children because it is free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form. It is all pure nourishment, giving strength to ward off disease.

MISS BONDFIELD, WHO URGED 'VOTES' AT NORTH SHORE

MISS MARGARET BONDFIELD

SOCIETY HEARS SUFFRAGE TALK

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 19.—Prominent society women from various points along the North Shore gathered at the Hawthorne Inn Cadno to-day where they listened to an address on the suffrage question by Miss Margaret Bondfield of England.

Miss Bondfield spoke on the conditions existing in England and the results that have been achieved there by persistent endeavor. Miss Alice Carpender of Boston and Boston, who is interested in industrial problems and has studied at Radcliffe, Columbia and Bryn Mawr, presided and introduced the speaker. During her address, Miss Bondfield roused her audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm and she was frequently applauded.

START CAMPAIGN IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The opening of Congressional headquarters of both the Republican and Democratic parties in Chicago marks the beginning of the Fall campaign, and to-day the work is in full swing.

Congressman James T. Lloyd of Missouri is in charge of the Democratic offices, while Colonel Harry Cassel is chief of the Republican organization. In the Democrat campaign book thirty-six pages are devoted to the red hot speeches of Senators Cummins, Bolliver and Lafollette and others of the party. The utterances of Mrs. Grace against Cannonism, tariff and one issues will be used in fighting the Republicans. Cannonism is to be made the national issue all over the United States, while the tariff will also be held up to criticism, if not to ridicule.

Both Lloyd and Cassel are optimistic as to the results to be obtained in the Fall. Each declare his party will be sure to win Congress.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

IMPOSTER DRAWS VETERAN'S PENSION

Some one representing himself to be Edward A. L. Francois is regularly drawing a pension from the government in that name, and has been doing so for several years. Meanwhile Dr. Francois of Clifton-dale, ordering himself justly entitled to it, is refused a pension on the ground that he is already receiving one. He knows very well that he is not, but there the claims to know better.

Senator Lodge has agreed to take up the case, and see if justice can be done the doctor. Whoever is using the name has put it in a war record exactly corresponding with his and was able to prove his claim.

Dr. Francois, a resident of New Orleans, enlisted in the Union navy in 1862 and served throughout the war.

MISS NIGHTINGALE'S VOW TO SWEETHEART

FOX LAKE, Wis., Aug. 19.—Florence Nightingale, "the Angel of the Crimea," had her romance, which may be told now that she is gone. In her girlhood she was the sweetheart of William Shore, her cousin. As the church canon of consanguinity forbade them to marry they parted with mutual vows of constancy. Shore left England for America and settled in Fox Lake. He remained here unmarried, on his death, in 1868, his body was buried in Wilmarth Cemetery in the village. Florence Nightingale awaited in her English home the call to join her lover, which she has just answered at the age of ninety.

ESTHER QUINN GIVES DETAILS OF PROPOSAL

Miss Esther Quinn, who has sued Professor Harry Thurston Peck of Columbia for 50,000 for breach of promise, left here on a back at her home in Boston to-day after hurried trip to New York to sign an affidavit, in which she specifies just when and how the noted educator is said to have proposed to her.

Her visit to the metropolis was made in sponse to a call from her attorney, Daniel O'Reilly, who was ordered by the court to make the specifications, which were sworn to by Miss Quinn at a hotel in New ork and served on the Professor's lawyer. he was then taken by an auto to the Grand Central Station and took the midnight train for Boston.

Fervent Love Note.

Her attorneys declare that they have a love note from Peck to Miss Quinn more fervent than any of those which have been published, the contents of which they are holding for the trial. "Take notice," says Attorney Wilcox, "that Esther Quinn received by her on the day of the proposal, which was on or about September 28, 1909. It consists of two pages of closely written sentiments which can only be discovered in the lexicon of true love."

In the bill of particulars Miss Quinn swears:

"First—That the place in the city and county of New York in which the request and promise to marry were made was at the premises at No. 527 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street in the borough of Manhattan, city of New York.

Proposal Was Oral.

"Second—That the request and promises to marry were made between the hours of, 7 and 10 o'clock P. M.

"Third—That the request to marry was oral.

"Fourth—That the promises to marry were oral.

"I had a long conference with Miss Quinn before she left for Boston," said Mr. Wilcox. "She intimated that she had trusted implicitly in Professor Peck and will loved and respected him, but that she would press the case against him only that he had destroyed the happiness of her life and that because of that action on his part he should be compelled to pay for her heart pain."

SEEKS GEMS OF GRACE FAMILY

Title to diamonds of great value, which belonged to Mrs. Margaret A. Grace, wife of James J. Grace, a millinery dealer at No. 276 Boylston street, is at issue in a suit brought in the Superior Court by Attorney Rufus B. Sprague as counsel for the S. J. Greenbaum company at Louisville, Ky., against members of the Grace family and Ida E. Fuchs.

The diamonds are now in the possession of Ida E. Fuchs, whose deceased father, F. H. Fuchs, was agent of the Greenbaum company. He accepted the stones as collateral to secure a promissory note given the company by Pierce J. Grace, a son of Mrs. Grace, who was secretary to the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins.

Mrs. Grace allowed her son to use the diamonds as collateral, and, with her husband, indorsed the note. It is discounted the note without the knowledge of the Greenbaum company. It is said, and the diamonds were in his possession when he died, a short time ago. When his daughter became executrix of his estate she kept the jewels, and now refuses to give them up.

The Grace note was protested, and the Greenbaum company is now seeking the collateral. The bill in equity seeks to enjoin Ida E. Fuchs from disposing of the diamonds, and an injunction is asked restraining John F. Kenby, attorney for Mrs. Grace, from paying any moneys from the Grace estate to any member of the family, all of whom are named as defendants.

ARMY CANTEEN NOT NEEDED, CAMP SHOWS

When I say I think the canteen is better left out of the army, I believe I am taking the correct view. Take this camp for an example.

Many people have the idea that because there is no way under the present law for a soldier to get liquor within camp limits, dives and saloons about the outskirts of the camp must thrive. Such is not the case, as I have taken care to learn.

The fact that a good many of these places have gone out of business purely because they could not get customers enough shows that my inference is correct.—Major-General F. D. Grant, at war school camp, Pine Plains, N. Y.

CRIPPEN HAS OPENED FIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, under arrest in Canada on a charge of murdering his wife, Belle Elmore, gained the first step in his preliminary fight to clear his name to-day when the Criminal Court of Appeals granted the plea of his solicitor, Arthur Newton, for a writ of attachment against the London Chronicle. This paper accused Crippen of poisoning his wife and said that the prisoner had confessed. Contempt of court is the allegation made in the plea of Crippen's counsel.

Almost everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

GIRLS ON LONG MOTOR VOYAGE

In an open twenty-five foot power dory, with twenty gallons of gasoline and plenty of food, Bessie Y. Hogan and Alice L. Densmore, two Dorchester girls, are trying to reach Mt. Desert, Me., by following the coast from the Freeport street float from which they sailed.

Neither of the girls is familiar with the operation of a motor boat, nor do they know anything about navigation. They are attempting the feat as the result of a dare. The young man who owns the motor dory made the challenge and is financing the excursion. His name will not be divulged by the intimate friends of the girls who are making the attempt.

TRIES TO FLY ACROSS SOUND

HEMPSTED, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Philip W. Wilcox, the Columbia student who built a biplane at Columbia and flew for the first time a few days ago, made a flight here today. He had his machine under perfect control until he broke the propeller, but he made a successful landing. He will make an effort to cross Long Island Sound this afternoon and has fixed his declaration with the Aero Club of Manhattan to cross before 5 o'clock for the cup offered as a trophy. Charles K. Hamilton will also endeavor to make the trip in a biplane.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

WALL STREET WOLVES SHOULD ALL BE SHOT SAYS RAILROAD HEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—It is not often timidity that exists abroad in regard to that the railroad president turns author, but before conditions which he declares control the country due to the unfairness of the government to the country, Arthur Stillwell, president of the Kansas City Mexico & Orient Railway, has written a book entitled "Confidence or National Suicide."

Mr. Stillwell is a railway builder and has little use for Wall street methods. He built one road, and Wall street so manipulated things that he lost its control. Now he has built some two-thirds of a 1,600 mile line, and is finishing with money not gathered in the Street.

The investors are persons not in Wall street and a large portion of the money has come from abroad.

Mr. Stillwell's book in many respects is a remarkable one. It is an appeal to the people to quit "scaring" the adverse railroad legislation and a defense of the winter is railroads.

Wall Street Wolves.

The author boldly takes the ground that the men who take the risk of building a line through an undeveloped country are entitled to a share of the increased value of property.

He believes they are entitled as much to a share of the increased values that come in the course of time as the persons who own land, the value of which is increased through the building of the road.

The railroad builder scores Wall street and the near raiders. These he likens to wolves, taller than the timber wolf, and intimates that many of them should be shot, as were the bank thieves and road agents of the West.

He likens them to pirates, who have no place in the business of the country, and to their bear raids he ascribes much of the

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

If any one has a notion of making permanent investments now, such notion had better be changed and invested in the bond list than in stocks. Gilt-edged bonds can be purchased to yield more than 4 per cent, and ought to yield more than 4 per cent, can be secured from perfectly safe issues.

$ $ $

It is possible that those persons who took a chance and made investments got bargains. They certainly have secured attractive speculative profits quickly. But their good luck has been the result of a favorable government crop report, and was a warning which could be ignored only by persons willing to take a gamble on the weather.

$ $ $

Those that believe the market is now making a permanent recovery point to the fact that the railroads have increased their operating capacity, their dividends and surpluses by many millions since then. That is true, but they have also increased their stock and bond issues in equal proportion, so they are relatively no stronger than they were when the other declines took place.

$ $ $

Conservative bankers that desire to remain in the confidence of their clients are not advising permanent investments now. It may be that they are mistaken, but the conservative bankers do not justify their position in pointing to the fact that American business has grown so that the visible balance of trade in favor of America has practically disappeared. Our crop outlook is absolutely certain for the near future, and that is all that turmoil is at hand.

$ $ $

Crops are improving daily, and the Western banking situation has been cured to such an extent as to remove it as a feature of danger. The fact that bankers are taking two views of the stock market, the conservative and the speculative idea, has confused the public somewhat. Never before in the break of July 26 has there been any doubt that stocks were pointed upward, but the leading brokers have been careful to make it clear that, while they favored purchases for quick turns or for speculation, they could not recommend investment buying.

Steel men are claiming the volume of unfilled orders on the books of the trust is not diminished because it is unattended. Years ago, when manufacturing facilities were somewhat limited, orders had to be given long in advance to assure reasonably speedy deliveries. Now the capacity of the trust and the great independents is so enormous that even orders of prodigious size can be filled on short notice. Therefore the practise of giving orders in advance is dying out. Even in prosperous times the volume of unfilled orders will tend to fade away, since they accomplish no useful purpose. The Steel Trust must give its monthly earnings.

$ $ $

Mr. N. I. Ames, says: "I am very much encouraged regarding the general copper situation, and believe that the policy of restriction of output which the producers have adopted is going to be the means of better prices for the metal. The foreign consumption of copper is most gratifying, and I look this month for a good sized reduction in the world's visible supply, and believe it will be a long time before it gets up to 400,000,000 pounds again.

$ $ $

Thompson, Towle & Co.: Until we get a day of activity approaching the million-share mark, when distribution can be recognized as taking place, it will probably be safe to continue to buy on reactions for stocks are still far from being dear.

$ $ $

Engineer Llew Humphreys of Salt Lake City reports the Mason Valley mines of Nevada, Nevada, as having 1,000,000 tons or ore running 3.5 per cent. copper. This is considered by him to be the best application for listing the company's stock on the Boston Stock Exchange.

$ $ $

D. C. Jackson, who has just inspected Chino, says: "Chino is one of the most propositions in the world. To date Chino has demonstrated over 32,000,000 tons of 2.63 per cent. copper ore. This does not include the higher grade material which runs 4 per cent. and over. Chino has one of the thickest ore bodies of its size in the world. In the Hayes Estate 9,000,000 tons of ore has been developed, and I consider it to be one of the largest copper producers in this country.

$ $ $

Since the market is so highly speculative Wall Street is beginning to pay much attention to technical conditions and past performances. A detailed study of the course of prices for the last ten years shows that on July 26 the average of twenty railroad stocks had reached a low level touched only twice before on a rising declining scale. On both occasions the market recovered somewhat as at present, but it went very much lower in the end. In the panic of 1907 these levels were reached just before the severe decline of 1903 and 1907.

STOCKS HEAVY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Dullness and heaviness marked the opening of trading on the stock market to-day, but a slightly better tone developed after the session advanced. Price movements were within narrow margins.

The Harriman stocks were the weakest feature of the list at the opening, although there was no selling pressure of any importance. Southern Pacific opened ⅛ of a point off from yesterday's closing and then it dropped another ¼ point. Union Pacific also opened off fractionally and then some scattered selling on Reading, but it rallied later.

When the market steadied a bit, the early fractional losses were rather quickly recovered and some of the railroads and industrials rose slightly above the close yesterday. There was little importance attached either to the declines of the several slight price movements.

BIG COLUMBUS DAY PAGEANT IS PLANNED

A great pageant is being planned as one of the features of the Columbus Day celebration, October 12. It is to be called "The Building of the Nation." Three hundred people are expected to participate. Because of the tremendous scale on which it is to be given, it will probably be held in the Harvard Stadium.

A number of Bostonians are interested in it. It is to be given for charity.

The idea of it is to show by scenes and music how this country is made up by the amalgamation of the various races of the old world. Representatives of thirty nationalities to be found in Boston will be brought together. One of the principal features will be a figure, typifying the America of to-day. It will be a massive float drawn by forty-eight young women, each carrying the flag of the State she will represent.

The singing of "America" by the audience and participants followed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Bonnet" by the vast throng will mark the closing of the program. Finally toward the close of the singing a great American flag filled with explosive balloons will be released and allowed to float above the heads of the multitude.

PATTEN PREDICTS A BIG WHEAT SHORTAGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—James A. Patten, who has just returned from Northwood, predicts a shortage in the wheat crop throughout the world this year, his prediction being based on observations made while touring Europe this Summer. In part he said of what he saw Mr. Patten said:

"There will undoubtedly be a large wheat shortage the world over for 1910. The crops have been damaged to an appreciable extent by floods. There will be a shortage in the wheat crop of France alone of from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels, and Germany has been very hard hit also. Prices are going up rapidly on the Continent for everything in the foodstuffs line. In Paris potatoes are double to-day in price what they were three months ago."

POLICE FIND MAN DYING ON STREET

Suffering from concussion of the brain, a man about thirty years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighing 160 pounds, was found lying face downward on a Boylston street, near the corner of Washington street, at 1:30 o'clock this morning. He was taken to the City Hospital, where the doctors pronounced his condition critical. There was no money in his pockets, nor anything to give an account of himself.

BRISK REALTY SALES IN SOUTH AND WEST ENDS

Sales in real estate continue active in the South and West Ends, and especially in the Roxbury district where many important transfers have been closed.

More property has been sold on the Back Bay than the corresponding period of last year.

The four-story octagon brick residence at No. 127 Marlborough street, between Dartmouth and Hereford streets, has been sold by Matilda A. Dow to Harwood Allen, who resold the property to Mrs. Allen for $22,000, with $14,800 upon 2,668 feet of land.

Florence Vining has transferred to Robert B. Harwood the three-story and basement pressed brick house No. 31 Marlborough street to Isabella H. Allen. It is rated at $9,000 and $4,000 upon 1,000 feet of land.

John J. Collins has sold his property, No. 25 West Newton street, to Frederick P. Hall and Albert W. Allen. The house is assessed at $8,400 and $2,300 upon 1,000 feet of land.

The four-story, with basement, brick dwelling No. 54 Rose street, between Morrison avenue and Harrison avenue, Roxbury, owned by Frederick Cheney, has been sold by Cheney & Co. for $7,200, and of this $1,800 is on mortgage.

Mary A. Simmons has sold to Mary A. Simmons, single, of Boston, her estate, consisting of the three-story brick dwelling at No. 1 Dimock street, West End, upon which there is a total assessment of $7,000, with $500 upon 900 feet of land, and the three-story brick dwelling at No. 3 Dimock street, West End, upon which there is a total assessment of $7,000, with $500 upon 900 feet of land, sold by Hurtis Landsdale. The land, measuring 1,004 feet, is rated at $25,000.

The six brick apartment houses, Nos. 117 Bartlett street, near Washington, sold by Mary Ferrero to John J. Collins to James O. Lomasney, are assessed at $12,000, with $4,200 upon 1,600 feet of land.

No. 4 Hazelton place, an old frame built in 1854, has exchanged ownership. William M. Conning of Saint James Building, New York, has sold 1,628 feet of land, and the total valuation is $4,800.

The five brick dwelling houses, Nos. 47 to 47A Dale street, owned by Mary A. Gilfoil, have been sold to Solomon J. Goodhue by Moses Alcan. The property is assessed at $12,000, with $3,000 upon 3,833 square feet, sold for $7,800.

The frame dwelling, No. 20 Garland street, between Centre and Edmund streets, has been sold by Annie Keniff to Mary A. Keniff. The house is assessed at $2,200 upon 2,500 feet of land.

The three-story apartment house and car manufacturing plant, Nos. 1 to 7 Dorchester avenue, corner of Dover street, and the land has been sold by Thomas H. Mahan to Frances A. Mahan. The land is rated at $50,000 and the buildings at $20,000.

The brick dwelling on Howard avenue, Dorchester, purchased for $8,500, is assessed upon 4,077 feet of land, has been sold by Simon Borhan to Alexander Sarantinos.

Simon Borhan has sold to Victor Rodnberg the brick house on Howard avenue, Dorchester, which is assessed for $6,700 and $1,500 upon 3,885 feet of land.

W. P. STODDARD OF PLYMOUTH DEAD

PLYMOUTH, Aug. 19.—William Prescott Stoddard is dead at his home at the age of ninety-five years. He was the third son of Isaac N. and Martha LoHarron Stoddard. He was graduated from Harvard in 1836, taught school and later entered the iron business with his father-in-law, the late Jeremiah Farrin, and later elected treasurer of the concern, now known as the Plymouth mills, which office he held at the time of his death. He was a member of the old Colony Club, director of the Plymouth Trust Bank, trustee of the Plymouth Five Cent Savings Bank, Pilgrim Society, Plymouth Lodge, A. F. and A. M. He served on the staff of Governor J. Q. A. Brackett. He leaves a widow and three daughters.

FIRE THREATENS LUMBER DISTRICT

The whole lumber district in Dorchester along the Neponset river was threatened by a fire which started shortly before 11 o'clock to-day in the home of Daniel Halloran at No. 29 Fulton street, quickly enveloping that dwelling in flames and rising to such proportions that only strenuous work on the part of the firefighters saved the Stearns Lumber Company from destruction. The building in which the fire originated, is a two and a half story wooden dwelling occupied on the first floor by Michael Kerrigan, his wife and five children, Thomas, seven, and John, five. Mrs. Kerrigan was ill in bed when the fire broke out, but dragged herself to safety. In the upper suite is the home of Daniel Halloran, and his wife, when she discovered the blaze, rushed to safety.

AUTO CASE IN COURT.

Herbert J. Ochs, eighteen, was arraigned in Municipal Court to-day, charged with appropriating an auto belonging to another to his own use. He was found guilty and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. Judge Bolster decided that on account of his age he would suspend the sentence.

COMIC OPERA PRINCE WINS ROYAL CROWN

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—After ruling as a Prince for fifty years, Nicholas of Montenegro has decided that he will be a king, and for some time his little capital of Montinje, perched on one of the steepest hillsides of the Balkan range, has been in a whirl of monarchial excitement.

The Skupshtin, or Parliament, has passed a vote approving of the elevation of the principality to the rank of a kingdom, and to-morrow the annual jubilee of Nicholas's accession, he will be crowned King in the old monastery with a blazing diadem purchased by himself. Then public rejoicings, a military review of the wonderful Montenegrin army and the fireworks will come to a rapturous close on the 30th.

This is the third of the Balkan states to enter the charmed circle of European kingdoms—the other two being Servia and Bulgaria, and while the term "comic opera" kingdoms has been applied to these, it is curiously appropriate to Montenegro, for the country of the "Black Mountains" is the Mancuria of Lehar's comic opera "The Merry Widow"; Prince Danilo of the opera is the Prince Danilo, the heir to the throne of Montenegro, and the Merry Widow of the opera is Princess Radowan, the dashing relict of a rich Montenegrin.

There are those who say that the determination of Prince Nicholas to elevate himself into kingship rests on the representations of his cousin that the comic opera had made Montenegro a laughing stock, and that it was essential for him to assume a regal dignity in order to afford the ridicule caused by the musical travesty.

That as it may be, it is certain that last month Montenegro sent out a note to the Powers announcing its intention to be a Kingdom. The Powers made no objection, and answered that they would be pleased to be represented at the celebration.

The King and Queen of Italy will be there—the King being a grandson of Princess Milena, and the Czar of Bulgaria, an Austrian Archduke, Austrian and English dukes, Helma Padua, representing the nation, and Peter Alexandrovitch, of Servia, will all go to Cettinje to see the new King crowned.

WOONSOCKET MAYOR PRIZE FIGHT ENEMY

Mayor James Mullen of Woonsocket is much opposed to prizefighting and is in hearty concord with the National League of Lawmakers, which has been organized to stop the so-called sport. In a letter to the AMERICAN the Mayor says:

Mayor's Office, Woonsocket,
August 19, 1910.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am heartily in favor of the abolition of brutal and demoralizing exhibitions of prizefighting and the reproduction of the same in motion picture exhibitions, as they are detrimental to the moral welfare of the community and have a degrading influence on the youth of the land.

I believe that the cities and towns have the power to enact laws and ordinances to prohibit these disgraceful exhibitions of prizefighting and the pictures of the same. Respectfully yours,

JAMES MULLEN, Mayor.

Other letters from lawmakers on this subject follow in part:

Representative Charles B. Everett of Sharon, Ct.:

In reference to stopping prizefighting I would say, send our best men to make our laws. Send men who care more for the good of the public than of the party. That will soon settle the matter.

Representative Charles W. Mace of Cumberland Mills, Me.:

Make State laws against prizefighting in all of the States. That is the only way that I know of in which it can be stopped. There is a universal sentiment against it and it should be stopped.

Stephen R. Hanscom of Errol, N. H.:

I shall be glad to do all in my power to help stop prizefighting. I think it would be a good thing to get the Grange interested in this matter.

'TAKEN UNEXPECTEDLY DRUNK,' HE TELLS WIFE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Here's Luther Little's latest story:

What threatened to be a serious situation at an uptown club was relieved by the ingenuity of a prominent New York lawyer whose name cannot be given. When he was leaving his house at noon his wife informed him she was to give a 5 o'clock tea, and exacted a promise that he would assist in receiving his guests. The lawyer went to his club, where he drank numerous Scotch highballs. Suddenly he thought of the 5 o'clock tea. It was then 5:15, and an excuse came to him like an inspiration. Scrawling the following note he sent it by messenger:

"Dear Frankie: I am sorry to disappoint you, but I have been taken unexpectedly drunk."

SOMERVILLE AUTO KILLS SALEM BOY

SALEM, Aug. 18.—Jumping from a wagon directly in front of an automobile owned and operated by Walter Benjamin of West Somerville, John C. McMenimen, aged ten, received injuries which caused his death at the Salem Hospital.

The accident happened on Essex street. Benjamin was not held responsible.

DIRIGIBLE BUILT FOR 15 PASSENGERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—On funds supplied by leading business and professional men, a fifteen-passenger dirigible is being secretly constructed here and will soon be completed, it is said to be of a new type which it is hoped will introduce radical changes into air craft generally.

ARREST DEAD MAN'S BROTHER AND WOMAN

NEWCASTLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—Ezra Wilhoit and Mrs. Helen Harp were arrested to-day as a result of the finding of the body of William Wilhoit in the Kentucky River. The men were brothers. The police say both were admirers of Mrs. Harp and had quarrelled over her. The woman is said to have preferred Ezra.

NEW ECZEMA REMEDY

Stops Itching at Once

The new remedy Cadum has astonished the medical world. Many cures of eczema and other distressing skin diseases are reported, and the remarkable feature in most cases is the quickness of the cure. Eczema is not a blood disease, but a skin affection. It cannot be cured by internal medicines. External treatment is absolutely necessary. Since the introduction of Cadum eczema is now recognized as a curable disease, and that tormenting affliction has been robbed of its terrors. Cadum stops the itching at once and begins the healing process with the first application. It destroys disease germs, allays inflammation and is soothing and healing to the skin. From the moment it is applied to any skin trouble immediate relief is felt. It is for pimples, blotches, hives, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, scurvy, scabs, blackheads, itching piles, etc. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c.

Grahame White, British Flier, on His Aeroplane

WHITE SAYS HE WILL WIN AT HARVARD MEET

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Grahame White, the daring English aviator, announced today that he will sail on Tuesday next for America to compete in the Boston aviation meet from September 3 to 13.

"I'm going to bring back a good part of the $37,400 prizes," he said.

He will sail on the Laurentic a few days before James Radley, who is expected to compete in the New York-St. Louis $50,000 race. Both men are scheduled to compete in the Long Island international meet in October.

White goes to Boston at the invitation of the Harvard Aero Club, which has guaranteed a big fee and insured him against loss through difficulties with Wright Brothers aero patents. White will take Farman and Blériot machines. From America he will go to India for the Allahabad meet.

AUTOS KEEP JOHN D. AWAKE; HE PROTESTS

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Coughing automobiles disturb the slumbers of John D. Rockefeller, and he wants something done about it. Bedford Run, which cuts through the Rockefeller estate is the main highway for automobile traffic between this place and Mount Kisco. Chauffeurs have a habit of cutting out the muffler cut-out opening the throttle.

A new sign now stands at the junction of Bedford Run and Webber avenue, directing automobiles to take the lower and more circuitous road, but the chauffeurs are heedless. To make the warning effective, Mr. Rockefeller will have to put the power of both the Pocantico village board and the Tarrytown town board behind it.

COL. HUGHES INSANE SAYS COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Colonel Joseph B. Hughes, formerly president of the Continental Tobacco Company, who received an injury to his spine seven years ago, has been declared insane by a lunacy commission.

His wife, Mrs. Belle Harper Hughes, who was a member of the Bostonians, petitioned the court to place him in restraint on the ground that he was incompetent. She said that he could do nothing for hours at a time upside down. He also believed that he was always returning from Cincinnati to his old home.

He is sixty-one years old, and his estate is valued at $305,000.

UNCLE SAM PAYS UP $2.74 AFTER 45 YEARS

WORCESTER, Aug. 19.—It took the United States Government forty-five years to pay a trifling debt of $2.74 that it owed to Thomas A. Haiphe of No. 32 Park avenue. When the Government remembered that Haiphe hadn't got his money it took about six months and seven miles of red tape to repay the loan. Thomas Haiphe was a soldier during the Civil War and the money due him was back pay. Yesterday the Government came across with the "sums of money" which Uncle Sam had notified him were due, said sums being $2.74.

RULES LAUNDRYMAN IS NOT A MERCHANT

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Aug. 19.—United States Commissioner Alexander Johnson, in a Chinese deportation case, decided that a laundryman is not a merchant, and, therefore, the returning of Ho Leung to America was in violation of the immigration laws.

Leung was arrested at his laundry here. He was ironing a shirt, and there was no evidence whatever that he handled any sort of merchandise.

INSURGENT SENATOR FROM CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCSCO, Aug. 19.—It is said at the Lincoln-Roosevelt League headquarters that not only would the insurgents be the majority of the delegates to the State convention, which will adopt the party platform, but that they will control both branches of the legislature which will elect a successor to United States Senator Frank P. Flint.

TRAIN KILLS FARMER.

FRAMINGHAM, Aug. 19.—John T. Sheehan, a well-to-do farmer, died as a result of injuries received when he was hit by a Boston bound New York express at Parks's Corner. He was buried fifty feet, sustaining a broken leg and shoulder and internal injuries. He leaves a wife and several children. Sheehan was fifty-five years old.

GIRL SWIMMERS AT WONDERLAND AMAZE WORLD

The best swimmers in the world come from Boston. And they are girls, too. That is what is claimed by a man who has seen swimmers in every country and in every clime.

Swimming feats are among the most attractive features of most of the Summer attractions throughout the country. The greatest of the swimmers are girls under twenty, some of the best of them being only twelve and fourteen years of age.

Almost any day at Revere one may see swimming feats performed that call forth great applause from the crowds on shore. Three days ago two girls from the Diving Show at Wonderland, Miss Esther Donahue and Miss Margaret Stanton, the latter fifteen years of age, forced their way through the raging white caps and swam through to the breakwater.

Leave Men in Lurch.

Some of the able-bodied young men started as a sort of escort. Then the girls had the laugh on them when the boys hung themselves up in the rigging of anchored boats before the girls had thought of quitting.

The girls returned in the best of condition. Miss Donahue swam over three miles in an hour and a half within a week just as a matter of keeping in condition. Then the next day just to show that there are others in the game Miss Stanton duplicated the feat.

Miss Margaret Stanton goes to fill an engagement to-day in Worcester for the balance of the season, accompanied by Princess Ioua, the Indian girl who stays under water over two minutes and picks up pins from the bottom of a twelve-foot tank.

Offers have been made for many of the Wonderland swimmers to go into vaudeville or follow the fairs. La Siren and Miss Berlo will do the former. The Lloyd sisters will accompany Charlie Washburn to Brockton Fair and elsewhere.

Flock to Wonderland.

Theatrical managers from about the East are visiting Wonderland almost daily estimating the worth of the several beautiful divers, and in many instances leaving behind offers of engagements.

Meanwhile Wonderland's great diving show, including Annie Morecroft, who swam to Nova Scotia and the Annapolis valley are lovely in August and September. The Dominion Atlantic Railway steamers either to Yarmouth or Digby direct maintain frequent and excellent service to these points. It is declared that persons troubled with hayfever find instant relief in the vicinity of Yarmouth.

BANK SHORTAGE CARRIED YEARS BY TREASURER

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 19.—Richmond H. Ingersoll has broken his silence and has given a brief account of his stewardship of the affairs of the York County Savings bank, of which for fifty years he was the treasurer. His accounting, however, was one of shortcomings, for Mr. Ingersoll admitted that there is a shortage in the bank's funds.

The exact amount of this shortage he could not tell, he said, nor could he say definitely over how many years the discrepancy ran. To President C. H. Precott of the bank and Bank Examiner W. H. Skelton to whom he made the statement in his sickroom, Mr. Ingersoll declared that the depositors' individual accounts, as represented in their pass books, had in no wise been tampered with. Also he asserted that he alone was aware of the discrepancy.

The interview with Mr. Ingersoll lasted half an hour. At its conclusion, which was necessitated earlier than expected by his almost complete collapse, he was joined by the attending physician, who said his patient could not be further interrogated then. Mr. Ingersoll showed a willingness to talk, and assured the officials that he would do all in his power to straighten out the bank's affairs. But he had much difficulty in marshalling his thoughts for a clear explanation, and the bank examiner left without gaining much of the information he sought.

The shortage, which generally is set at about $100,000, may be estimated correctly by Mr. Ingersoll to-morrow. He said that with the bank's books before him he could make a close estimate of the amount.

BAVARIAN DUKE SEEKS 'QUIET' AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Duke Franz Josef of Bavaria, twenty-two years old, gallant and impressionable, is trying, with difficulty, to recover from the excitement of seeing so many lovely American women as he did in New York. Now he is in Newport as the guest of Mrs. Robert Goelet. His is confronted by the dazzling smiles and bright eyes of the society buds and matrons, and is finding Newport hardly more restful than the metropolis.

In New York His Highness saw beautiful women at the Plaza, where he was lodged, on Fifth avenue and at the theatre. The chorus girls of the "Up and Down Broadway" company kept their eyes on the box where the Duke was ensconsed between the acts the Duke was "taken back" and met some of the principals face to face. Altogether his final day in New York was quite exciting. Late that night the Duke said:

"New York—Oh, a fine city! Wonderful women! But so exciting! I hope I shall find Newport more quiet. New York women. All so lovely!"

The next morning the Duke came to Newport, where he found himself in the midst of the naval celebration, with 10,000 jackies, more or less, being fed and variously entertained by the cottage colony.

Between the number of beautiful society girls and women he is meeting here and all the added excitement of the naval parade the Duke is not finding Newport exactly "quiet."

He will be here till to-morrow night.

MILK DEALER FINED.

Edward E. Bencks of No. 167 M street, South Boston, to-day paid a fine of $15 in the district court for having milk for sale below the standard.

NEW WAR TEST FOR STOMACHS

A new kind of hardtack will be tried out on the boys of the "Fighting Ninth," when New England's star regiment of infantry goes to Pine Plains, N. Y., to-morrow, to spend ten days playing the war game, under the auspices of Uncle Sam. While the men of the Ninth are looking forward to a stirring tour of duty at the New York muster grounds, they are not less interested in the experiment the War Department is going to make on their stomachs in testing the value of the new grub.

The Ninth is in a class by itself in more ways than one. When the Government issued its invitations to all the volunteer militia organizations to participate in the war manoeuvres, the Ninth was the only Massachusetts regiment to accept. All the other regiments chose Framingham. The Ninth goes to New York to undergo the privations of actual warfare.

The new bread, the government claims, does not get so hard that dynamite is needed to break it up. The stuff to be used on the Ninth was baked six months ago.

Red Tags Give You More Money to Bank

That's why the wise buyers hunt for them. Each Red Tag you find stands for a straight-from-the-shoulder markdown. The original price from which the article was marked down was lower than the same piece of merchandise would have sold for elsewhere—which is our usual way of doing business. In addition, in the first place with each ten cents' worth you buy, Legal Stamps will be given—forming all in all a bargain combination that has no counterpart in New England.

Our method in this Red Tag sale consists of Red Tagging at a reduced price everything that we want to clear out. The former selling price is left on the piece of goods, but a Red Tag is also placed on it showing the marked down price the article is to be sold at. This creates bargains that help to keep money in your pocket—gives you more to put in the bank.

BALDWIN MAY MEET WOLGAST FOR TITLE

By ED. W. SMITH.

Just off-hand and without figuring it up out of the pugilistic bike book, how many lightweights are there in the country capable of giving Ad. Wolgast a battle?

It would be hard to guess without some figuring for the lightweight class presents more than one strange anomaly. There are in this country more lightweights who are not lightweights than there are similar "cheaters" in all the other divisions put together.

No class is more popular at the present time than the 135-pounders, and for that matter there never was a more popular class or one that contained more clever and capable fighters. Yet dozens of the men who claim a place in this division are nothing but welterweights and have no chance at all of making the limit laid down by the rules of the game and upheld by the three last champions.

Dozen Men Worthy of Bout.

There are at least an even dozen fighters of good class in America who are entitled to a chance at the championship crown—a dozen men who might challenge him and not be scoffed at.

This makes the going good for champion Wolgast, therefore it ensures him a lot of matches, and as the class is popular these matches probably will be decided at favorable terms in a financial sense.

Now that Packey McFarland, through his failure to cover the Wolgast deposit of $1,000, has really admitted that he cannot or will not do the mark of 133 pounds at the ringside, it may be safe to say that if he cannot be strong?—it does not mean that these men are not going to meet.

They will box some time, and the chances are the stock yards man will get some concessions in the matter of weight. But the time is still some distance off and badly ripe yet for such a meeting.

The other Illinois "scrapper," Johnny Thompson, removed himself from the lightweight class some ago because he couldn't make the weight. Johnny could do the weight, but there would be a funeral instead of a fight afterward.

East Has Likely Candidates.

This narrows the field down to a dozen or so.

In the East there are Jack Goodman, Tommy Murphy, Bert Keyes, Matty Baldwin and Battling Herier, probably the latter being the only one of this list whose weight would be under suspicion. First of all, therefore, we must forget our old friend, Battling Nelson, former champion. He can make the weight without a great deal of discomfiture.

So perhaps can Freddie Welsh, the English champion, but the latter evidently is getting bigger as he gets older, and even now getting it at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for Packey McFarland as recently as Decoration Day.

It's up to the Red Sox to settleve themselves to-day and give the Tigers a spanking they won't recover from in a hurry. There is only one game separating the two teams for the second station in the race and another loss by the home team will mean a tie up for the coveted spot.

The Red Sox have been taking the big end of the series from the Tigers right along and they are due to continue that kind of action if they are to figure in the pennant hunt, or be replaced by the champions, who still have decided intentions to get up closer to the leaders and make it warm for the Quakers before taking the count.

Manager Donovan will probably shove up another southpaw against the Tigers today and send Eddie Karger, the one pitcher in the league who has caused Jennings more agony than any one else. Karger is in prime shape to do some more killing and the fans depend on him to stop the Tigers from starting a cleanup of the series.

Jennings is keeping mum on his line of tactics as he wants to bring some surprises in the way of boxmen, mixing them up a bit just to unsettle the Red Sox. Wild Bill Donovan, who is handling the team on the field while Jennings is under the weather, will be on deck to-day if he finds the usual cunning in his arm.

The Doves will open on the road to-day playing the Pirates at Pittsburg and the tailenders expect to get out of last position by the time they return to the South End Park for the long session before the 30th ball flight.

On their own grounds the Pirates have been easier to beat and the Doves are subject to hand them some defeats after what they did when visiting here.

ARELLANES LET OUT TO SACRAMENTO CLUB

Frank Arellanes has been disposed of for the season to Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League.

As the Boston club is a working agreement with the California club, Arellanes will no doubt be in line again next year in better shape to go the distance than he has been this year.

TRI-STATE PITCHER EQUALS CY'S RECORD

DAVENPORT, Ia., Aug. 19.—Pitcher Faber of the Dubuque team of the Three Eagle League did not allow a hit, and did not let a Davenport player reach first base in the nine innings played.

This feat has been accomplished but few times, notably by Cy Young, pitching for Boston against Philadelphia in 1904, and by Addie Joss, pitching for Cleveland against Chicago in 1908.

"I was never able to wear a hat without one. The hair was thinned so fast and so many combings were in the comb that I was ashamed to wear Lorimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic."

Before and After the Game

By DYKE CLARK.

Outplayed by the Tigers. That's about the whole story of the Red Sox disaster in the first game at home. It was a bad start considering that every game is needed just now if the Boston club is to figure in that championship this year. The four of the Tigers makes them look all the more formidable to the fans. Jumping off a train, then getting into the game and pocketing it from two pitchers that are weighty cut for the stuff and will be hard to down. Two more chances the Red Sox have to get even and on these two contests hinges some very important history to the local fans.

To lose a game in one inning is the toughest kind of medicine to swallow, but that's what was on the card. A couple of errors and some heeling sweating counted four runs for the Tigers and they looked perfectly safe with that margin chalked up.

Can't give a classy bunch like the Tigers at the present rate they are going any lead and they'll be hanging around the finish like a fiend. He is out to redeem himself for Rich Gedeon's lack of stick work in the series here and has started things with a clout. Three-base crack, one a two-bagger, is about what he expects to do every day while here.

The Tigers have one young pitcher who will help them in the chase for the pennant and his name is Edgar Willett. He showed it by the way he held the Red Sox lumps through rings. If the team behind him is likely to appear such as he certainly had the Speed Boys entirely under his control.

Two hits in six innings were all the Red Sox could raise and there wasn't much chance to get any runs. They were up for a shut out through the kindness of the same Willett as it was getting over a long time till in the seventh round when Willett made a wild pass. Up he served generosity by punishing Charley Hall on his pitching arm when the only substitute open up as a pinch hitter in the game inning and if may be the cause of keeping the star dinger out of the game for awhile.

Of course Ty Cobb was the big show in the game. Wherever he came to bat the fans got anxious. All but the first time when he was given a free ride and there was a yell that sounded like an explosion. Right away Speaker saw the game was going down on his specialty of bumping the balls but the next effort was a couple of smash and two singles followed. When he scored on a wild pass Eddie Cicotte was pitching and he was not any too pleased to see the ball get over the plate, so the slugger walked and it was a good piece of judgment on the part of "Knuckles."

Have without Jennings and his Wee Yah, the Tigers can win. But because the bristling manager and star coacher is not on the side lines, don't for a minute think he is far from the scene and watching his team going through their act. The five-time pilot has furnished from the game manager has some strenuous talk to the umpires between innings and unless President Johnson reports we are not likely to see the Tiger leader in his grass picking sketch during this trip.

There's another example of how the Tigers can come back. Did you notice those startling catches made by Matty McIntyre in left field and the way he handled ground balls? Stahl of long hits. He has been in and out of the game since the season opened, but is now going like a house afire and is jumping into Cobb's territory for plays.

Billy Purtell made his bow before a Boston crowd of fans wearing a Red Sox uniform and the indorsement he received from them was more than flattering. There was no symptoms of stage fright in his easy manner and the way he handled ground shots convinced everybody that he is the goods and will be still more valuable in time.

Frank Arellanes has departed. The club asked waivers on the Mexican pitcher some days ago without any results and President Taylor at last made a deal with the Sacramento club of the California Coast League and Arellanes has gone thither. He will do better in the climate where he comes but will never advance any till he learns how to keep in shape.

WALSH SURE DEATH TO BASE-STEALERS

By EDDIE COLLINS.

[Second Baseman, Athletics.]

Base stealers, beware of Ed Walsh! This bit of advice, if offered for the edification of the American League, is certain to fall on deaf ears. But the youngsters making their first appearance against the White Sox star can well afford to take a tip. I have made a close study of the pitchers and catchers of all the clubs in our circuit, and to my way of thinking Walsh is the king of them all when it comes to freezing an opponent to first base.

Too many baseball fans have the idea that the catcher is the mainspring of the battery—the player supposed to nip off all aspiring stealers. This is true only in part. Remember when Nick Altrock was in his prime? How many American League speed merchants stole in games with Nick on the slab? Not many, if my memory serves me right. Altrock had a baffling delivery that kept the runners almost glued to the bag. With Walsh it's a case of perfected near-balk, and this motion keeps the opposing player always within a few feet of the sack.

Now and then Walsh gets into trouble by overstepping the bounds with this movement. A balk is the punishment, but it's seldom you hear of the big fellow committing that error. In all my experience I have found the White Sox pitcher the best man at this style of work.

Get Jump on Smith.

With Frank Smith, recently traded to the Red Sox, it's just the opposite. Smith has a delivery that carries him well toward the batter while winding up, and once this motion is under way it's a simple matter for the runner to jump off to a comfortable lead.

After taking this lead, if alone on the path, I seldom watch the ball. Instead, I keep both eyes on the man at second, who most likely will take the throw to help the stealer. This study, exercised almost in the twinkling of an eye, and coupled with the hook slides, in most cases enables the runner to reach second in safety.

In base stealing, as in any other line of work, the player who makes up his mind to succeed in nine cases out of ten has his wish gratified. Make your mind to get there, regardless of results, and go through with the determination. That's been my experience.

The hardest knocks always come at the start of the season before the body has become hardened from frequent slides, but these "raspberries" wear off in time. It's a severe test of one's strength, but I have never felt any ill effects from any steals.

My ambition this year is to hang up a record of fifty stolen bases. Last year I finished with a record of sixty-seven.

Luc Factor.

Luck enters largely into the success of base stealing. Some weeks I pilfer at least one big daily. Then other weeks I and it a physical impossibility to frisk even a single base. The base stealer necessarily needn't be a ten-second sprinter. While at Columbia in my college baseball days I never traveled the century under eleven seconds. Heavy lists of our club is admittedly a slow man on the base, yet he has stolen several bases by taking a dangerous lead and watching the pitcher. Tommy Bush of the Detroit club is a very fast man who has perfected the hook slide, which bewilders the best of the second baymen.

Tyrus Cobb, who topped the list of stealers last season, is the baseball lane runner in the game to rub at second. He has wonderful speed and is singularly blessed in the coordination of mind and muscle. This combination will carry him safely to victory, but I propose to give Tyrus a merry chase for the American League base stealing laurels this season.

Few runners attempt to steal on our pitchers and it's my duty to cover second for the others. I usually straddle the bag to make the runner come straight in. In the way I take some chances of getting spiked, but the danger is greatly minimized by the second anchor man on the right position and this knowledge comes only with experience. You rarely hear of Bobby Wallace being spiked. The St. Louis veteran has taught them all in his time, and I doubt if he has many scars to show as the result of baseball's fiercest game.

Take the case of some of our great catchers—men who are noted for their pegging abilities. Wm. Schang, for instance, is a crafty pitcher, equally versed in the art of baseball thievery. Yet, we scheduled one of many thefts. Both leagues are rich in backstops of this class.

GIANTS' PITCHER ELUDES SLEUTHS

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—When the Giants left this city for Cincinnati a guard of detectives joined the crowd that gathered to see them off—not to say farewell, but to arrest Fred Mc. Walker, one of the new pitchers, who is accused of assault. They did not find him.

According to Carlo Hunter, a maid at the hotel where Walker had been living, the ball player attacked her while she was in a room adjoining his on the fourth floor of the hotel. Flights, Hunter says, she escaped down the fire escape, broke Walker's nose and threw him down stairs. Then Walker disappeared.

CAMP REVIEWS GRIDIRON RULES

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Aug. 19.—The new football rules have been received by Yale football officials, of whom Walter Camp, head advisory coach, alone is here. Asked what he thought of the rules, Camp said:

"The rules certainly look complicated, but we can only wait to see how the officials and players solve them. I hope that the rules will at least work toward the lessening of certain of the injuries produced by the heavy mass plays of former years."

Mr. Camp was editor of the rules which have just appeared. The committee drafting them consisted of Percy Haughton of Harvard and Dr. Carl Williams of the University of Pennsylvania.

FANS DIVIDED ON MERITS OF BIG DEAL

WATCH FOR WINNERS IN THE BASEBALL CONTEST SUNDAY

Prizes for letters in the controversy over the swapping of Lord and McConnell of the Red Sox for Pitcher Smith and Third Baseman Purtell will be announced in the Boston Sunday American.

One hundred dollars to be awarded.

Now that the Red Sox are home and the fans have had a chance to witness the work of Purtell out in the third garden where Harry Lord used to be at home, there is more talk about the trade than ever. The principal topic of conversation at the game yesterday was whether the Taylorites were hoaxed or not and what caused the Red Sox slump.

The letters poured into the BOSTON AMERICAN office by the bale last night, but now there are many people who seem to think that the local team didn't exactly get a couple of lemons. They point out that Purtell has come across with a few timely wallops with the willow and that Smith when he is right is as good as they make them. Still there are scores of rabid fans who yell because Lord and McConnell have been lost and they declare that the Speed Boys have disposed of the two speediest boys of all.

Send in your letters now—just what YOU think. Remember:

FIRST PRIZE, $25.
SECOND PRIZE, $15.
THIRD PRIZE, $10.
FIFTY PRIZES OF $1 EACH for the next best fifty letters.

Address your letters to BASEBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American, P. O. Box 227, Boston.

Here are some interesting letters:

Doesn't Like the Deal.

Jamaica Plain, Aug. 17, 1910.

Editor Baseball Contest:

If a man should exchange a 1:50 horse for a city truck-horse because he did not need the champion at that special moment, his friends would worry for his sanity. Why, they would argue, should the market value of the horse be lowered because one man—the owner—has no present use for his wonderful ability. Others would see him to advantage.

It is a parallel case to the Lord, McConnell—Smith, Purtell trade. The value of the Red Sox men should not have been lowered on the baseball market because their owner could not find any present work for them. Other owners realized their value—the price should have remained stable.

There is no doubt that the Red Sox players were the better, for records never lie. Lord, himself, was worth the two Chicago players. When a man is the acknowledged premier third baseman in the game he is certainly worth more than an ordinary pitcher or an infielder whose only recommendation is that he is young and "a comer."

WILLIAM P. LEONARD,
17 Union street.

Sober Second Thought.

Boston, Aug. 16, 1910.

Baseball Contest Editor, Boston American:

Dear Sir—While first result of news was severe shock, sober second thought resulting that while both Lord and McConnell have played brilliant ball for Boston, internal difficulties must have existed, or else we must admit that Lord, in particular, has gone back greatly. In either event, his value to the team was comparatively little for some time previous to his going.

McConnell has undergone operation for appendicitis. Any one who has had such operation knows that a man cannot be himself within a year, and may never regain former agility and endurance. Quick, nervous, sensitive, the presence of a strong rival for his position has always handicapped him, and this condition still exists.

Both men are of a style more suited to a team depending on a high-class pitching and heady, inside baseball to win games than to a free-hitting team with a string of second-class pitchers such as the Red Sox.

Purtell's class is shown by fact that a grand all-around man such as Tannehill has been on the bench all year. Smith has long been recognized as a great pitcher. Extent of injury to leg, to my mind, the deciding factor. If he regains former class, think both teams profit by trade.

JAMES LYNCH.
810 Barristers Hall.

Even Swap, He Says.

Medford, Mass., Aug. 16.

To Editor Baseball Contest:

Dear Sir—The fans are one and all set very much against the trade made by Mr. Taylor which sends Harry Lord and Amby McConnell for Smith and Purtell. They all believe that Lord is worth Smith and Purtell and that McConnell is a gift. I don't quite agree with them. Purtell is a young player, a timely hitter and fast on his feet. In a few years he may be what Lord is to-day, and with all the spirit and good feeling which Lord would not have had if he had stayed with the Red Sox, which means a lot to a team. Is Purtell they get a good utility player, for he can play every position in the infield creditably. McConnell is a good player and will make a good man for the White Sox. It looks to me to be about even. Good luck to all of them. Respectfully,

J. M. WIDELL.
21 Medford street.

MATINEE WILL DECIDE BOSTON CHAMPIONSHIP

A capital racing card is presented for Saturday at Combination Park, Medfield, by the Metropolitan, Fellaway, Dorchester, Lynn and Quanapowitt Driving Clubs, to finally determine the championship of Greater Boston, and the award of the handsome silver loving cup offered by Messrs. Henry S. Harris & Son, emblematic of the title.

The "Meter" lead by a margin of seven points over their nearest rival, Fellaway, but the issue is still decidedly in doubt, and the bitter rivalry will result in a smashing list of races on Saturday. Each of the rival clubs has brought out for the final fray the best horses obtainable in the club list, and some gruelling battles will be seen.

Entries for the final inter-club matinee are as follows, the horses being marked by the club letter as follows: M—Metropolitan, F—Fellaway, D—Dorchester, L—Lynn and Q—Quanapowitt:

WILL GIVE SHIELD TO LEADING PLAYGROUND

The Boys' Games Committee of Boston-1915 has decided to award a bronze shield to the playground winning the most points in the final meet to be held at Wood Island on August 27. The "midgets" will have an equal opportunity to win fame for their playground as the seniors; for a junior point winner will score just as much as his elder competitors. The points will be awarded on a basis of five for first place; three for second place, two for third place and one for fourth place.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

FAR BE IT FROM THE TIGERS TO spank the Red Sox out of second place. Oh, no! Jennings and his Bengals would never think of doing such a thing. Keep an eye on that Detroit bunch, also an eye on the Athletics—and if you have another eye, keep it on the Red Sox—and see the way the Tigers avoid grabbing the summit position. Yes, verily, the bunch from Detroit have no ambish to cop the flag.

THERE'S A WHOLE LOT OF US FOLKS who still believe that South Africa is a wild land, a land that only mighty hunters like the Big Noise dare to tread. It can't be such a bad place after all when they hold a world's scolling match on a river in the very heart of it. I'll leave it to you.

ANY of the local welterweights who want a little exercise will be welcomed by Mike Twin Sullivan over at the Riverside Boat Club, where he is training daily for some fights he has on the program. And those workouts that the welter champ indulges in are not set up to slow music. Mike takes a jaunt down to Scranton, Pa., next week to annihilate a novice by the name of Sailor Tighe. He'll come over to Buffalo to give lessons to Paddy Lavin, the pride of that district. Furthermore, he expects to trade a punch at the celebrated Jawn Philadelphia O'Brien up at St. John's about Labor Day.

Straight Tips: In betting a bet where A bets B that Brockton will score twice as many runs as Boston you assert that A wins when the score is 1 to 0. If the bet was made as it is stated in the American, A should bet when A is not twice 0 and never will be. You can easily prove this by dividing 1 by 0. The answer is certainly not 0. Do you see? Time to get a new arithmetic, and you will thank me later. Yours truly,

You're settling the bet just the way I did, old Sport. You keep on dividing anything by two and you'll always have more than nothing; in other words, zero is always less than half of nothing, and A wins hands down with something to spare, because one is always twice nothing, and then some. Do you get it? Or will I get a hammer?

All right, kiddo. I accept your apology. Forgot Patterson was on the map since they quit murdering each other, burning up, getting flooded, being blown to pieces and breeding Anarchists down that way. Been wondering for a long time how I could get Paterson back into the news.

KRAMER MAY DEFEAT MORAN

Jimmy Moran has a bigger task on his hands to defeat Frank Kramer, the American sprint champion, next Saturday night in their match race at the Revere bike track than he did with Alfred Goullet, the Australian.

Kramer is one of the veterans of the game and is a faster sprinter than Moran. He will probably beat the Chelsea rider in the mile sprint, and it will be left for the unlimited pursuit race and five-mile paced events to settle the argument, so the fans are certain to see them go three heats.

All Through Trains via Burlington Route now ELECTRIC LIGHTED

The complete electric lighting of all Burlington Route Through Trains became effective June 1. In the history of American railroading no such extensive and costly improvement of coach lighting has even been attempted up to this time.

To inaugurate this service, it has been necessary to entirely re-equip, electrically, seventy-two complete trains and practically all the reserve passenger equipment of the entire Burlington system, consisting of locomotives, baggage cars, mail cars, coaches, chair cars, dining cars, sleeping cars and observation cars.

The dynamo system of electric lighting—the most satisfactory known—is used. An electric dynamo installed in the baggage car of each train generates the current and supplies the entire train with a brilliant, steady light, not only when the train is in motion, but also when standing still. Furthermore, a skilled electrician is on duty on each of these trains for its entire run, to see that the train is properly lighted, ventilated and heated, both by day and by night. On the trains of no other railroad are exclusive train electricians carried.

These electric lighted trains operate between Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Denver, Billings, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma Portland and intermediate points.

If you are going west or northwest, on business or pleasure, let me quote you rates, send you attractive folders and tell you about these splendid electric lighted trains. It is my business to assist you, and without charge. Just drop me a postal saying where you are going.

Some Causes of Divorce

Before marriage the man and girl show only the best sides of their natures; after marriage they reveal their true selves

By Dorothy Dix

Article No. 2

THE second thing that leads to divorce is that almost every marriage is founded on deceit and misapprehension.

Courtship is a confidence game in which both youths and maidens endeavor to take each other in, and if the music of the wedding could be translated into prose they would cry out, Stung! Stung! Stung!

It is true that, except in rare cases, a man does not engage in a deep, dark, nefarious plot in order to lure a woman to the altar, nor are there many women cold and crafty enough to deliberately ensnare men into marrying them. Nevertheless, the man in love and the woman in love unconsciously act a part before the one he or she is trying to win, and are no more like that real person than a dog rose is like an American Beauty, or a cold boiled potato resembles the pommes de terre au gratin of the fashionable restaurant.

Nor is the deceitfulness of mankind and womankind altogether responsible for this. Dame Nature, who, as we have shown, is the great matchmaker, inspires us in the courting season to put the best foot forward. The same instinct that puts, in Spring, the Hyeller iris on the burnished dove, and that makes the peacock strut and pose before his mate, makes a young man put on his best clothes when he goes a-courting, and makes a girl Marcel her hair to the roots when her best young man is a-coming.

It is what causes pigin, prosaic John Jackson to pretend that he adores German opera and understands Browning because Gladys Gwendolyn Smith affects these things, when his real taste is musical comedy and George Ade. It is what leads Angelina Jones to sit up with a rapt expression at the baseball game to which Bill Jenkins has dragged her, although she is enduring a martyrdom of boredom and wondering why her escort yells himself black in the face over what some crazy looking men are doing to a measly ball.

No man who was trying to win a girl would dream of such a thing as showing himself s her with a three-days' stubble of beard o his face. Nor would he let her see the he was by nature overbearing, and tyrannical, and stingy, and selfish. On the cetrary, he is chivalrous, and tender, and elf-ubnegating, and lavish towards her. He anticipates her every wish and has no thought except to please her, and shenaturally argues from this that when she marries him she will get the one perfect husband in the world.

Before marriage the man and the girl show only the best sides of their nature to the othr

In the same way a woman deceives a man. You don't catch her appearing before him in curl papers and a Mother Hubbard wrapper. You never hear of any girl who feels called upon to tell the man she is in love with that she is utterly useless and of no account, that she doesn't know how to cook an egg or make her own clothes, and that she hates the sight of a cooking stove, and has the incurable bargain sale habit, and that if he marries her he will have to board in a hotel and buckle early and late to make enough money to pay her bills.

She's Mild and Angelic

Nor does she warn him that she is selfish and high tempered and has nerves, and that all of her family are afraid of her. Far from it—in his presence she is so mild and gentle that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, and she purrs so under his hand when he plans their little home that it is no wonder that he believes that he is getting a household angel.

Is it any wonder when these two people get married, and drop the lovely masques that they have been holding up in front of their faces, and see each other as they really are, that there should be trouble? I once heard a woman say that she felt as if she were a bigamist, because the man she was married to was so different from the man that she thought she was marrying. Without doubt, the majority of marriages might be annulled on the ground that a different bride or bridegroom was substituted at the altar for the one that the man or woman thought he or she was marrying.

If marriage is a failure because men and women deceive each other as to what they really are, it is also a failure because men and women do not deal honestly with each other in regard to the conditions of matrimony. It is, as you may say, a skin game in which neither the principals nor the prospectus is on the level.

After marriage both husband and wife surprise each other by revealing their true selves

When a man is courting a girl, in speaking of their future life he deals in glittering generalities. He may tell her that he is poor and that they will have to live in a vine-wreathed cottage, and the girl translates this to mean about a $75-a-month suburban home, full of white enamelled furniture and rose-strewn chintzes—the real improved English kind, you know.

He doesn't come down to brass tacks, as he should, and say: "Look here, Maude, if you marry me you will have to live in a four-roomed flat and do your own cooking, and make your own hats and dresses, and scrap with the butcher, and lunch and pinch and scrinch, and have no amusement except my society and a w in the park on Sundays. Now, do think you love me enough to pass up e thing else for the joy of being at m side?"

Nor does a girl give a man a chance to withdraw on the safe side of the altar telling him that she is one of the ill minded, frivolous sort of women that got to have nice clothes, no matter if works her husband to death or drives to stealing to get them, and that she character member of the race suicide c and that she means to devote her life bridge instead of babies.

When the Showdown Comes

Is it any wonder that, when a m marries a woman who has led him believe that she is one thing, and fi out that she is another, he falls out love with her? Is it any marvel th when the woman who thought she w marrying a man who was a perfect lo discovers that she is united to a grizzly tyrant, she ceases to care for him? Is surprising that matrimony that must lived under conditions that they neve bargain for is full of disillusions to bot men and women?

No need any one throw up his hand in horror when such people compla to the divorce court. The wonder is th all of the film-flam couples do not squal and that so many duped, deceived an and women are dead game sports, w stand by their sorry bargains to the en

One of the great remedies for the v vorce evil would be for men and wom who are thinking of getting married, t try to deal honestly by each other, an by themselves, in the days of courtship.

'John Dear'—And a Typical Case

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THEY were spending their vacation in the mountains and, for a while, their seats in the dining room were at the same table as mine.

She was a little delicate woman, with a vivid, eager face.

He was a strong, burly looking man. I hate a burly man. I felt I'd dislike this one before he opened his lips; after he opened them, I knew I did.

There was a third member in the party. A meek, little old lady, the man's mother.

The first evening they appeared at dinner, there was an exquisite bowl of poppies in the middle of the table.

"Oh!" cried the wife, clasping her hands, "John, dear, did you ever see anything more beautiful?"

"John, dear" looked up from his soup. "I hate flowers, all over the dinner table," he growled. "They bring insects and the heavy drop into the food; its unsanitary."

"I thought I would like to shake that 'John, dear.'"

The wife subsided, and ate her soup in silence.

The mother fluttered in a few minutes late, with a scared, apologetic look at "John, dear."

The Poor Mother's Apology

"I'm so sorry to be late," she murmured, "but I could not find the waist of my dress; it was in the very bottom of my trunk."

"We've been here for two hours, and you women might have unpacked your trunks instead of gazing at the sunset."

"But it was so beautiful, son."

"Well, it'll be just as beautiful to-morrow. A time for everything, and everything in its place; that's what I say. That's the way I make my business a success."

I felt like shaking "John, dear," but his women folk gazed at him in abject awe and adoration.

With every course that was served, the best was left for "John, dear", and when the waitress came first to me, and I deliberately chose the best piece of chicken, the mother's gentle eyes looked indignant reproach at me.

"John, dear," himself coldly at me, and I knew he thought. "You are one of those new women who think they are man's equal."

His Patient Slaves

After dinner I sat near them on the verands. "John, dear," and his patient slaves fascinated me. He presently found that he had left his cigar case upstairs. "Pshaw!" he muttered, "I've left my cigar case upstairs," and he made a faint effort to rise.

"Oh, let me go," exclaimed his wife, and he sank back and let her go, though but a few minutes before she had confessed to a bad headache.

"Is that the right one?" she asked, as she dropped breathlessly into a seat beside him. "There were two, and I hardly knew which to choose."

"No," he grumbled, "but it will have to do, I suppose; trust a woman for doing the wrong thing, if she has any choice to make."

"John, dear," thought I, to myself, in the friendly darkness, "I'd like to punch your head.

They were in the mountains for two weeks, and, during the entire time those two women waited on him, hand and foot.

At the end of their visit, "John, dear," had gained in weight and looked brown and well; but the little wife looked wan and weary, and the mother nervous and old.

They had a boat in which "John, Dear," spent much time, taking pretty girls about the lake.

He also played a great deal of tennis.

He Played Much Tennis

"Don't you play tennis?" I asked the wife, one day.

"Oh, yes," was the answer, "but not nearly well enough to play with John. It would bore him to death to play with me. Mother and I are quite happy if he is enjoying himself. Some men go off on their vacations, all alone, but John is not that kind; he loves to have mother and me go along."

"Of course he does," I thought, indignantly, "to wait on him and see that he gets the best of everything."

For two weeks "John, Dear," scintillated and was the life of the place.

When he left, everyone said "how delightful he was" and "how much he would be missed."

"He was so charming to everyone," one enthusiastic girl cried.

"Everyone but his wife and mother," I said grimly.

"Why, Miss Fairfax," she said, wonderingly, "whatever do you mean?"

Just that; he never did one thing for them or with them; he let them wait on him and give him the best of everything. If you want my candid opinion he is a selfish pig"

I don't think she half believed me; but it was the truth.

There Are Other "John Dears"

And, what's more, I know other "John, Dears," who are letting their wives wear themselves out in loving service.

The women are largely to blame; the mother begins it; the wife follows suit.

Every woman, who loves her husband, likes to fuss over him and show him little attentions; but slavery is ruinous to him, and undignified for her.

"John, Dear," will quickly contract the habit of letting you wait on him; so be careful how you begin it.

Freckles

Can Be Easily Removed—Almost In One Night—Like Magic

Miss E. M. Berger of Beloit, Wis., writes so interesting and convincing a letter about how she got rid of her freckles that we gladly quote a part of it: "I have used one jar of Kintho and am simply delighted with the results. I was always of the opinion that freckles could NOT be removed, but thought I would give Kintho a trial, and it has truly convinced me that freckles CAN be removed. It has proved all you claim for it."

If your case is like Miss Berger's, get a two-ounce package of Kintho (extra strength) at Houghton & Dutton Co., Jordan Marsh Co. toilet goods counter and see if it won't do the same for you. Money back if it fails.

SIMPLE FROCKS

LINEN and cotton dresses are this season out on simple lines that never fail to please. Gingham, madras, percale and the various linen patterns depend largely upon their perfection of fit.

Many of the dresses are arranged with belts that are sufficient in themselves, but allow the addition of the wide leather belts so much in vogue.

Simplicity is the keynote of the Summer frock. The individual touch can be given by applying the decoration in embroidery of an unpretentious sort, either to the collar and cuffs, on plain linen or to the embroidery that is used as trimming.

Dorothy Dix Tells Why You Should Read "Alias Jimmy Valentine"

IF you like a story that is as full of thrills as an egg is of meat, read "Alias Jimmy Valentine," that begins in to-morrow's BOSTON AMERICAN. It will make the most blase sit up and take notice, for Jimmy was a romantic youngster that has had no counterpart since the day of Robin Hood.

Jimmy was a cracksman, an artist, who opened safes for the money there was in it and the diversion there was to it, but he was also a gallant knight, who went about rescuing distressed damsels and throwing roughs who frightened fair travelers out of car windows. Finally, Jimmy met a halt in his gay career by getting plucked and thrown into prison, where he was seen and recognized by the beautiful lady he had rescued, and whose esteemed papa had a pull with the pardoning power, and also a bank, and the girl got Jimmy pardoned, and——

But his subsequent adventures are too good to have the edge taken off of them by being told ahead of time. Read them for yourself. Suffice it to say they form a series of hair-raising adventures that keep you guessing until the last chapter.

There is the most charming and tender love story woven through it all, too, and it warms the cockles of your heart to find one novel of the good old-fashioned sort.

There is a woman's love is the subject for something else than psychological analysis, and where the author really does believe that a good woman can inspire all that is best in a man and reform what is worst, and make him into a new creature. You remember what Kipling said about his little halfbreed, that for the sake of a woman turned hero in the crisis when heroism was needed? Why not make Jimmy Valentine, and it's a good thing to read about in these cynical and loveless days.

There is a deeper note, also, in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." It brings up one of the greatest problems of our time, the giving of the criminal a chance to become a respectable member of society, instead of keeping him a perpetual outcast, and forcing him to continue in a life of crime because every other avenue is barred to the man who has once worn stripes.

When you read what happened to Jimmy Valentine and his company of crooks it will make you feel like joining the Band of Hope, or rather starting an individual one, and holding out a helping hand to the weak brother who has fallen by the wayside, and trying to pull him up a bit, instead of using all your strength to thrust him farther down into the mire.

There are lots of funny stories in which a good lesson is so skilfully sugar-coated as in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Nor are there many stories of such novel adventure and genuine heart interest, and so well worth reading.

Don't miss it!

DOROTHY DIX.

Married Life the First Year

No. 9—Her Trip to the Office

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

HELEN paused at the entrance of the subway, hesitated a few moments and then turned back. Why not stop in at Warren's office while she was so near?

She had come downtown to a jeweler's in Maiden lane to have a loose stone reset in one of her rings. Warren had recommended that particular place as very reliable, and where there would be no danger of having the stones changed.

And now, as she was about to take the subway on her way back, the thought came that his office was only two blocks away! And it was just 12:30—Warren could take her out to luncheon.

She had not been in the office since their marriage. Twice during their engagement she had gone down. Once he had taken her and once she had surprised him by calling unexpectedly. She remembered how pleased he had been—how he had dropped everything and devoted himself to her, and then took her out to luncheon.

She caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror of a shop window. She was looking very well, her trim tailored suit and dark blue hat, with its white wing was most becoming. She adjusted her veil, gave a few needless little touches to her hair and hurried on.

Delightful Anticipation

Her cheeks were delicately flushed with anticipation as she planned the surprise of her visit. He had a new stenographer who would not recognize her. She would not give her name; she would merely say: "A lady to see Mr. Curtis." And she pictured him coming out with a bored or indifferent expression which would change quickly to surprise and pleasure when he saw her.

The great office building loomed in the long hall—and she was at the door of Warren's office.

A girl was busy at the typewriter, and through the half open door of the private office came the sound of voices—men's voices with boisterous laughter.

"Is Mr. Curtis in?"

"Your name?" the girl demanded curtly.

"Just say a lady wishes to see Mr. Curtis."

"You'll have to give your name," still more curtly.

"Will you give my message to Mr Curtis?" Helen demanded, feeling a strong antigonism to this girl.

"Not unless you give your name." Her manner was now almost insolent.

He Came Out Frowning

"Very well," Helen's eyes flashed as she said with much dignity. "You may tell Mr. Curtis that Mrs. Curtis is here."

The girl stared at her even more defiantly, and then went into the private office.

Warren came out frowning anxiously "Anything happened?"

"Why no—I just thought I'd come in while I was so near. I came down to have that stone reset."

"Oh! —Well you ought to have telephoned me," brusquely. "I'm very busy just now"

"I can wait," timidly. "I thought we might go out to luncheon."

He frowned. "Couldn't think of it! And I haven't time to stand here talking either. —I've got some men in there now."

His turned as though to leave her.

Helen was conscious that while she had turned to her desk, she was furtively watching them.

"Warren, wait; I want you to take me to the elevator; I want to speak to you."

He hesitated, and then impatiently opened the door and followed her out in the hall.

"Well?"

How He Regarded It

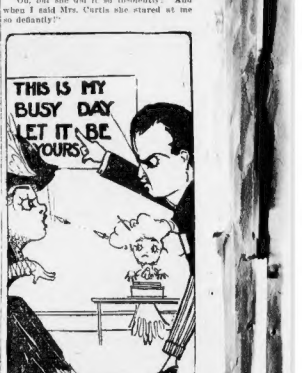
"Nothing." Indignantly, "except that you might show me at least some consideration before that insolent girl. Couldn't you see she was sitting there gloating over the way you greeted me. I wanted to surprise you. I thought you'd be pleased," with a sob, "so I told her to say a lady wished to see you, and she insisted on my name, and——

"Why, of course; those are her orders."

"Oh, but she did it on insolently! And when I said Mrs. Curtis she stared at me so defiantly!"



She expected a warm reception, but was disappointed.

"Well, if you think you can come down here and upset the discipline of my office you'd better stay at home. Miss Foster was perfectly right. I've instructed her to get the name of every one before announcing them."

"But, Warren, it was the way she did it—the insolent way."

"Oh, nonsense! Your imagination always works overtime. Here's the elevator."

The car stopped. He hurried her into it with a brusque good-by.

ESSEX CLUB'S DINNER-DANCE FILLS A VOID

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Among all the festivities of the week dance tonight at the Essex Country ub is by far the most interesting being events have been rather fewer a season in town, and the dance at ub, is just ready for a say terpsichorean ollic.

On the entertainment committee are Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Philip Dexter, Mrs. Lester Le- nd and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, all whom are to be entertaining at parties on grounds of the club are effectively orated for the occasion, the trees being ung with yule-colored lanterns, while, nform the pink-and-white a veritable fairy nd.

The Honorable F. Ingraham's Remarkable Female Duck

The Duck—Regardless of Sex—Should Be Named Elihu Root

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

A very able and distinguished lawyer is Mr. Fred Ingraham, who has his office in Broadway, New York City, and his country place on Long Island.

Mr. Ingraham, among his possessions, includes a very large country place, and several other country places around it on the shore, where he shoots one kind of birds—and places in the South where he shoots other things.

In his front yard, in the moonlight, he has some strange little creatures peeping in a pathetic way.

He told an inquiring visitor that those were little wild ducks. Some of them would be eaten later in the season. Others would be kept to produce still other wild ducks. And a few would be used for "decoys."

If you don't happen to be a great sporting lawyer you may not know what decoys are. They are live ducks, not able to fly, but able to take a great interest in the doings of the free wild ducks. They are put out in the water when their owner goes shooting. They swim around passionately excited when they see the wild ducks overhead. They call to the wild ducks inviting them to come down—the wild ducks do come down, and then they get shot and eaten.

Mr. Ingraham, who is one of the most distinguished sportsmen and legal lights, is particularly proud of one of his "decoy" wild ducks.

This is a black duck, a female duck, of course, since otherwise, of course, it would be called a drake. This duck not only acts as a decoy—attracting free wild brothers and sisters—BUT ACTUALLY ENJOYS THE WORK.

She goes out shooting with Mr. Ingraham when he goes after ducks. She travels in an empty champagne basket with straw on the bottom.

When her owner reaches the shooting ground, the decoy duck, at present unnamed, is set free from her champagne basket and paddles around in the water.

When she sees wild ducks flying overhead, she flaps her wings, pretends that she has a great many good things to eat down where she is, and utters wild cries.

The ducks overhead, a little tired anyhow and interested to see one of their fellow-citizens having a good time below, slowly settle down on the pond.

Then up rises Mr. Ingraham, a very big, strong, well-built man, and with his gun proceeds to shoot the confiding, foolish wild ducks.

When it is all over Mrs. Decoy Duck swims around among the dead bodies, happy, villainously cheerful.

At the end of the day she climbs up into the rowboat, gets back into her champagne basket and goes home to eat her dinner and sleep a happy sleep undisturbed.

This is not a very pleasant picture of duck life or duck nature, is it?

It seems impossible to believe, yet it is absolutely true that this depraved female duck, with her pinions clipped so that she cannot fly away, ACTUALLY ENJOYS LURING HER FELLOW DUCKS TO THEIR DOOM. SHE IS DELIGHTED WHEN THEY ARE DEPRIVED OF THEIR LIBERTY OR FALL DEAD OR WOUNDED AT THE FEET OF THE OWNER OF THE DECOY DUCK.

If it seems difficult to you to believe that a duck could be so base and heartless—ask yourself how it happens that human beings who ought to know better are infinitely worse and more heartless than this decoy duck belonging to Fred Ingraham, the lawyer?

Doesn't it occur to you that the proper name to give to this duck—in spite of her sex—is the name of a distinguished gentleman—Elihu Root—who is the head of all the decoy ducks of the lawyer world?

Mr. Ingraham will, of course, not agree with this suggestion, as he is a lawyer, and has the most profound admiration for Elihu Root, in common with other lawyers.

But the ordinary little individual doesn't agree with Mr. Ingraham's opinion of Elihu Root's value and character.

What is the difference, after all, between Ingraham, a great powerful interior for the poor ducks, who puts his little decoy on the water, then stands up and deprives the free wild ducks of their life and of their liberty—and the trusts, whose decoy duck is Elihu Root?

Doesn't the big trust, powerful and superior to the ordinary small man, utilize Elihu Root and men of his type just about as Ingraham utilizes that decoy duck?

Isn't it far worse for a lawyer, an intelligent, educated human being, deliberately to help his master to deprive the people of their rights and their liberties—THAN IT IS FOR A POOR, IGNORANT FEMALE DUCK, IN RETURN FOR A COMFORTABLE CHAMPAGNE BASKET TO SLEEP IN AND A FULL SUPPLY OF FOOD, TO LURE HER BROTHERS AND SISTERS TO THEIR FATE?

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

"PRAYER OF THE HORSE"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Will your columns please give a little added publicity to the following:

"Prayer of the Horse."

(Translated from the Swedish.)

"Do I know, my Master, I offer My Prayer? Feed me and take care of me. Be kind to me. Do not jerk the reins; do not whip me when going up hill.

"Never strike, bait or kick me when I fail to understand what you want of me, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me, and if I refuse to do your bidding, see if there is not something wrong with my harness.

"My dear give me too heavy loads; never hitch me where water will chop on me. Keep me well shod. Examine my teeth when I fail to eat; I may have an ulcerated tooth. Time, you know, is very painful. I am unable to tell you in words when I am sick; so watch me, and will try to tell you by signs.

"Pet me sometimes; I enjoy it and will learn to love you.

"Protect me in Summer from the hot sun. Keep a blanket on me in Winter Weather, and never put a frosty bit in my mouth, but hold it in your hands a moment first.

"I carry you, pull you, wait patiently for you long hours, day or night. I cannot tell you when I am thirsty; give me clean, cool water often in hot weather.

"Finally, when my strength is gone, instead of turning me over to a human devil to be tortured and starved, take my life in the easiest and quickest way, and your God will reward you in this life and in Heaven. Amen."—Our Dumb Animals.

SIGNAL PLATE FOR FIREMEN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Kindly permit me, in the columns of your paper, to introduce a suggestion to the fire department which, I think, would be of great use to the public of any large city in this country.

You have probably noticed that when the fire department receives an alarm the engine corps rushes out into the crowded street, paralyzing the life of the street. Drivers do not know where to turn their engines, people or help. If from every side and accidents are frequent. Such accidents are liable to happen as long as the public on the streets do not know where the salvage corps intends to go. To avoid such panics I suggest a simple improvement, a "signal plate" similar to the signal plates on railroad poles, which will show the direction the firemen intend to go.

This signal plate should be movable. When it stood vertically up it would mean that the firemen intended to go straight ahead. If turned people or left, it would show that the corps intended to turn in the next right or left street.

The signal plate could be painted in light colors, like white and red stripes, so that it could be readily seen in the day and night, and be attached always to the wagon which the Fire Department sends out first, placed right behind the driver and the man who takes care of the bell could operate the signal plate.

The confusion in the street, seeing those signals, would give way to the firemen, and in this way accidents could be avoided.

I do not state that this improvement is an invention of my own, but I have seen it being practically used in Germany, and hope that the fire departments of this country will realize the importance of this simple improvement, which, when used, will avoid many accidents and save human lives.

MORRIS EHRLICH.

Fooling the Earl

By PATRICK EGAN

Ex-U. S. Minister to Chili.

THE death of Earl Spencer, generally known as "the Red Earl," and among his friends as "the Fenian Earl," twice Viceroy of Ireland, recalls one of the most interesting and amusing episodes of the national struggle of forty years ago in Ireland in which he was led into playing, unwittingly, the leading role in one of the most important Fenian gatherings held in those tremulous days, and tends to contribute very materially to swell the then depleted Fenian exchequer and to put new life and courage into the movement.

After the seizure of the revolutionary organ, the Irish People, in 1865, and the prosecution and imprisonment of a large number of the active workers, including Thomas Clark Luby, John O'Leary, O'Donovan Rossa and others; followed by the suppression of the attempted rising of '67, with its endless crop of prosecutions and imprisonments for high treason, treasonfelony and the rest of the litany of crimes against British tyranny, the Fenian organization and its exchequer were very badly demoralized.

To add to the difficulties of those of us who had been fortunate enough to keep out of prison and who, under cover of the Amnesty Association, which we started in 1868, had been keeping the flag flying, we were obliged to take such care as we could of a number of the hapless wrecks prisoners, then being liberated, and of many of the relatives of the long term prisoners who had been left almost destitute. Indeed, in January, '70, we were driven almost to our wit's end, when, fortunately, the happy thought occurred to the writer that by a little diplomacy we ought to be able to press the enemy into service, as well as our friends, to help along the cause.

My plan was to organize a grand popular fete for the coming St. Patrick's Day with a great people's ball in the evening, the whole to be given "under the patronage of the Lord Lieutenant," which, in accordance with custom, would insure the presence at the fete of the Viceroy and Countess Spencer, accompanied by their entourage, with all the fashionables trailing after, while the Fenian organization and influences could be counted upon to supply the rank and file; the whole to be, of course, for the benefit of the Fenian exchequer.

The idea was warmly taken up by my associates of the Amnesty Association; and its secretary, John Nolan, one of the managers of a city department store, afterward universally known among the Irish race as "Amnesty" Nolan, threw all his marvellous executive power into the work and contributed largely to its success.

Knowing the keen desire of the Dublin Castle crowd to get or hook a crook close to the people, with the view, of course, to eventually win them away from their nationalist leaders, we determined to utilize this desire. We first secured from Court Shamrock of Foresters, of which I was a member, authorization to hold, under its auspices, for benevolent purposes, a popular outdoor fete and a popular ball. Armed with this we sent a carefully selected delegation, under the leadership of a young city attorney, to Sir Arthur Guinness, afterward Lord Ardilaun, a true blue Tory who owned the Dublin Exposition Palace with its magnificent grounds, to ask for the use of the palace and grounds for St. Patrick's Day to hold a grand popular fete and ball for benevolent purposes, to be held under the auspices of Court Shamrock of Foresters—a strictly non-political and non-sectarian organization, extending over England, Ireland and America—and to say that we believed we would be able to secure the patronage of the Lord Lieutenant. This program seemed so attractive to Sir Arthur, that so anxious was he to get upon good terms with this strictly non-political and non-sectarian element, with its broad extensions, that he promptly agreed to let us have the palace and grounds for the day without charge.

Then our delegation approached Earl Spencer, the Viceroy, and with the gift of the use of the Exposition Palace from Sir Arthur Guinness, he was only too happy to extend his viceregal patronage to this grand popular celebration under the auspices of this "strictly non-political and non-sectarian organization extending over England, Ireland and America."

Our delegates then applied for and secured from the officers of the garrison the service of Her Majesty's Military Band to discourse music for the occasion and also permission for the soldiers of Her Majesty's garrison to compete in military drills, sword and bayonet exercises and general athletics, for prizes offered by our committee, then being liberated, and of fee. With the patronage of the Lord Lieutenant, how could the officers of the garrison do otherwise than accede to our request?

St. Patrick secured for us kind weather for the fete, while our organization supplied the people to such numbers as to pack the extensive grounds. Promptly at 3 o'clock the Earl and Countess Spencer and vice-regal suite arrived, accompanied by the usual cavalry escort, and were received at the entrance by fifty members of our committee, every man a Fenian, escorted through the grounds, and upon departing, after witnessing many of the military and other feats, they expressed most cordial appreciation of the courtesies extended, being all the time entirely ignorant of the fact that they had practically been attending a Fenian camp meeting, and had actually committed treason-felony by materially aiding and abetting the revolutionary organization and its exchequer.

In the evening we had simply a people's ball, the attendance having reached about 50,000, and the vast floor area of the exposition being so crowded that there was no space left for dancing.

Notwithstanding the myriad channels of information possessed by Dublin Castle, ranging from the common informer upward to persons that would seem to be above suspicion, it took quite a long time before "the English garrison" (as the loyalist elements are called, and their friends in England, learned the inside of that grand popular fete and ball, held "under the auspices of Court Shamrock of Foresters—a strictly non-political and non-sectarian organization, extending over England, Ireland and America," and when the joke got out, some two or three years after the fact, the late Sir William Harcourt promptly nicknamed Earl Spencer "the Fenian Earl," a title by which he was long bantered among his friends.
